Southeastern State College Is Many Things ...

R605

What is S.S.C.? It's a small, friendly college where students are known by their names, not a number. It's an active college campus that is growing — but students can still make it from one building to another in time for class. It's a school where the teachers still have time for students — even the student who struggles for a D. It's the smile on Sandy Campbell's face as she dances at a DJ dance. It's the look in Rick Tate's eyes while he communicates to his audience. What is S.S.C.? It's a place where great memories are made to last a lifetime.

One coed seems to be all 'tuckered out' by a very busy day.

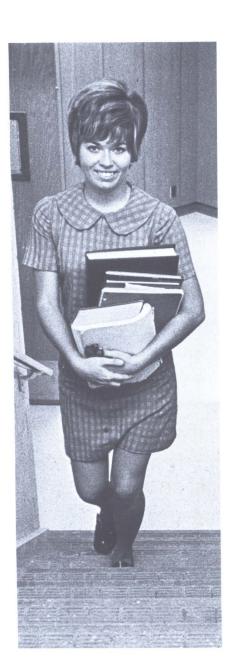

A Step In The Right Direction

College is a step in the right direction ... or is it? For some, like Scott Hancock, the right direction is slaving away at the typewriter. The right direction for Mary Barnes seems to be returning to her room to study. The campus policemen do their best to keep everyone moving in the right direction.

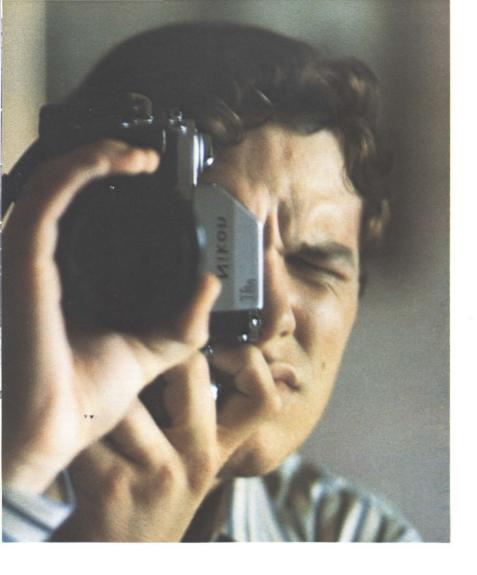

A step in the wrong direction resulted in a dip in the fountain for Cindy Gilmore, Larry White, and Joey Yohe.

Fall Activities Begin For S.S.C.

School photographer Steve Barker begins the semester by looking through the camera lens — a position he will hold throughout most of the year.

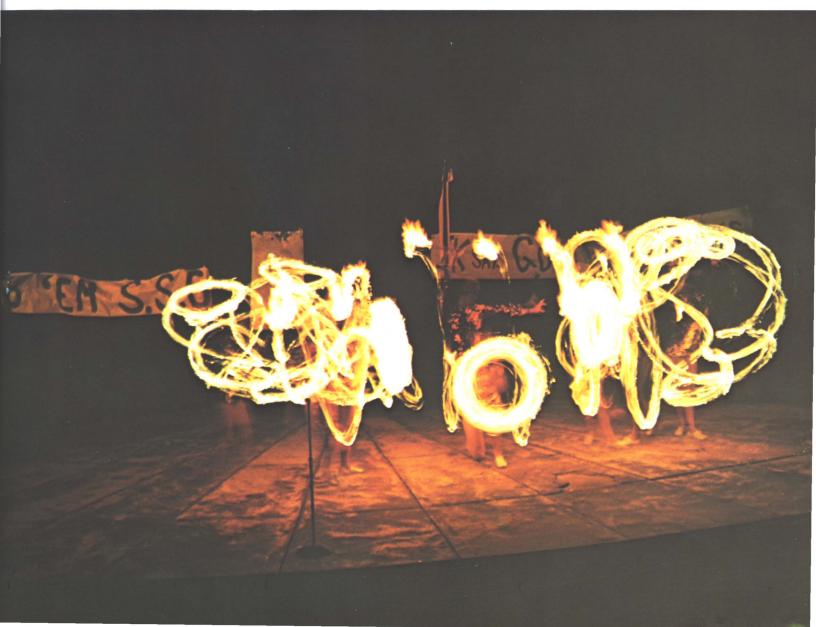

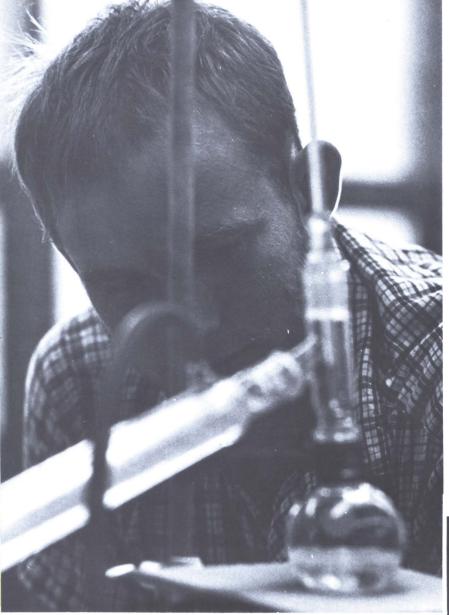

The fall production of "Stop the World" was a great way to begin a school year — both for the cast and the audience. FRONT ROW: Diana Latimer, Sherry Rogers, Sidney Cater, Janie Roberts. SECOND ROW: David Rich, Lynn Monks, James Buck, Toni Kilpatrick, Faye Lockwood. THIRD ROW: Sarah Cotner, Jane Ann Looney, Francis Wade.

Trombone player, Bud Stevens, boning up with the S.S.C. marching band.

The Southeastern twirlers made a bright showing at the first pep rally of the season.

Classes, Classes

It's a long hard four years from enrollment to graduation, and much of that time is spent either preparing for classes, meeting classes or worrying about classes. The hard work pays off though in whatever is waiting the other side of graduation. It's a nice thing to think of as the classes go on and on and on.

And More Classes

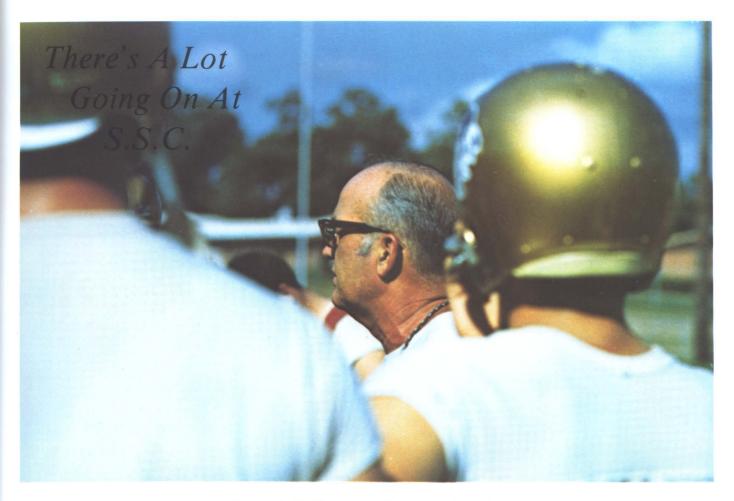

The campus of Southeastern creates not only a pleasant scene, but provides a quiet atmosphere that draws many students outside to study.

Head coach, Bob Thomas, puts his long years of experience to work on the Practice field.

SSC's cheerleaders Cindy Cater, Jamie Kidd, Jan Shaffer, Stephanie Thomas, Karen Watson, Bonnie Plummer, and Lynn Monks put in many hours in order to be ready for the first fall football game.

CLASSES

The most important aspect of any school is its students. Classes are designed to fit the needs of the students, basics first, then advanced courses. At Southeastern State College, most classes are kept to a minimum whenever possible to accommodate our individual needs. Since we make up the class, it is our duty to get the most out of each one. Through our stay here we will attend classes, more classes and even more.

ORGANIZATIONS

College Players

Professional creativity is the key phase that sums up the work of the Gamma Alpha Cast of Alpha Psi Omega and its subsidiary organization, College Players.

Developing professional theatrical productions for Southeastern Oklahoma with the result of enlarging each member as a better person is the goal of both groups. College Players membership is open to all interested students and their activities include production work, participation in the Homecoming Parade, traditionally providing clowns and this year entering a queen contestant.

Alpha Psi Omega is the national honorary dramatics fraternity for which much theatrical work must be done before membership is conferred. This professional organization aids in the presentation of all major productions providing financial support for some. Members work in all areas of production such as design, construction crews, publicity and theatre management, as well as reading for parts.

Topping all accomplishments this year has been the work done in conjunction with the Speech Department and the College administration to acquire an entire new portable lighting system for the college which can be used in many places and for which plans are presently being made for its uses.

Major productions for this past year include "Stop the World - I Want to Get Off", "The Zoo Story", and "The Star Spangled Girl". Also, members presented a road tour for "Stop the World" in conjunction with the McAlester Little Theatre and later as a cultural exchange with East Central State College.

"The Fantasticks" and "J.B." were presented during the spring semester.

Chorvettes Tour The Caribbean

The Chorvettes, singing ambassadors of Southeastern State College, consist of 15 selected students who must demonstrate the ability not only to perform as soloists, but also in small ensembles. The group is directed by Mary Ann Craige and Doris Simpson, instructors of music and speech.

In the fall of 1968, the Chorvettes were formed to sing as a public relations group for SSC. Membership is open to anyone, on audition, and is not limited to music majors. Members represent many areas of interest, including pre-med.

Since that time, the Chorvettes have become one of SSC's star attractions. Besides being in demand in Oklahoma and north Texas for service organizations and conventions, they were contacted about performing at the state lodges, and they toured the Caribbean for USO during the month of April, 1970, entertaining many hundreds of servicemen stationed in that area. The tour included Panama, Puerto Rico, Cuba, Grand Turk, Antigua, Eluthera, and Patric Air Force Base, Florida. The tour was a rousing success, and their performances both at home and overseas brought standing ovations.

A summer tour of Hawaii is presently in the planning stage.

Sigma Tau Gamma

ΣΤΓ

As the oldest fraternity on campus, Sigma Tau Gamma takes pride in learning and growing with SSC. With a chapter of 80 active members, the Sig Taus manage to have a great deal of representation in campus activities. Dwight Nuckolls led the way as Student Senate President with seven other Taus holding important campus offices.

On September 15, the men of Mu Chapter chose Debbie Krahn as White Rose for 1970-71. A member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, Debbie was a junior Marketing Major from Atoka and also served as secretary of Student Senate and Phi Beta Lambda.

Epsilon Theta Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon is in its fourteenth year at Southeastern. Since it's start here at the college TKE has built up several traditions and annual events that keeps it in step with the growing campus. Along with this, the TKE's added several functions that proved quite successful.

The TKE's started the year off with rush. The rush party this year was held at the TKE House which is located on 6th street. Pledges that picked up colors for the fall semester were George Bouldin, Rick Brandoff, Rick Boyle, Fred Combrink, Dan McAlester, Ron Hunter, Ron Sharp, Jeff Munday, Charles Tyree, Chris Keyes, Ken Johnston, and Mike Hardy.

The first big dance of the year was the Mini Skirt party which was held at the Parish Hall. Following that was the pledge party (The Jungle Party) held at the fraternity house with the Alpha Sigma Tau's sorority. Later in the year the TKE's hosted the Sigma Kappa sorority to a mock European road rally. Near the end of the semester the Delta Zeta sorority was invited to a Christmas Party in the Savage Ball room. Just before finals began the TKE's hosted one hundred underprivileged children from Bryan County to a Christmas Party. Second semester the TKE's held their annual Red Carnation Ball and the annual Easter Egg Hunt for the underpriveleged children.

Published for the second year on campus, The Southeastern made use of many techniques of page make-up and writing. New innovations in the newspaper included the 'Why Not' column and the 'Critics Review,' both of which were instrumental in making changes on the campus.

Late in the fall semester, Kenneth Nichols, was named head of the Journalism department.

Editor-in-chief of The Southeastern was Lou Ellen Allen. Assistant editors during the fall semester were Ellen Monk and Karen Smith, and during the spring semester Jim Mc-Gowen and Steve Barker were assistant editors.

Aviation

The professional aviation department has added this year all of the flight courses to its curriculum at Eaker Field. Included in the program are private, commercial, flight instructor, instrument, instrument instructor, and multi-engine courses.

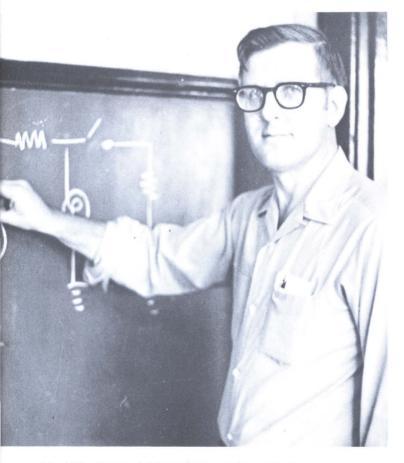

To help administer these new courses, three new faculty members have been employed for the teaching of the Aviation curriculum.

During the 1970-71 year, the Southeastern State College Research Foundation has subleased Eaker Field for the aviation department, which it now operates. The department is also offering for the first time airframe and powerplant courses. The Research Foundation is providing special equipment needed for the new course.

During the year the aviation department has announced that it will award scholarships from each aviation class offered on campus. The first semester's awards went to Robert Van Buren from the private class, Al Packard from the flight instructor class, and Chookiat Prathipasen from the commercial class.

Two new English seminars were taught during the 1970-71 school year. Dr. Joe Littlejohn was the director for the transformational grammar seminar while Mr. Dennis Letts taught the new media for teaching English course.

The English faculty was well-represented at the South-Central Modern Language Association Conference in Memphis, Tennessee and the Oklahoma College English Teachers Association in Norman.

A new suite of offices contributed substantially to the efficiency and comfort of the English department.

Dr. Margaret C. O'Riley was named chairman of the English Department at the beginning of the second semester. Dr. Eugene Slaughter, former department chairman, was named Division Chairman.

One of the highlights of the work in the English Department has been the work of the Oklahoma-Texas Triple-T Project directed by Dr. Eugene E. Slaughter.

This is a project designed to hasten the training of school personnel. The Triple-T Project, now in its second year at Southeastern, is one of 43 in the country supported by the U. S. Office of Education. Ten members of the English Department have been involved in this program.

The number of journalism students has increased with the addition of new courses and equipment. The department employs about 15 full-time student employees.

Elena Capuccio, Nancy Schultz, Cathy Wells and Lou Ellen Allen all play a large part in the journalism department.

Kenneth Nichols, publications director, gives instructions to Rudy Manley, Steve Mitchell, and Ross Saiz.

Raymond Piller and Nan Lacey display the 100,000th book to be cataloged — a facsimile of the first impression of the original 1611 edition of the King James Bible.

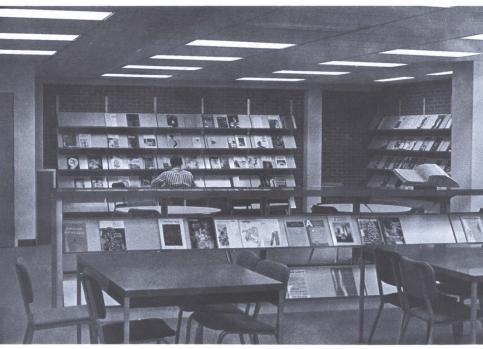

A landmark in the history of Southeastern State College's library was reached during the 1970-71 school year when the 100,000 book was added to the collection.

The library provides research facilities as well as an atmosphere of relaxation, giving the individual student an opportunity to further his quest for knowledge and broaden his scope of ideas. Throuh the use of open stacks arranged by subject areas, reading lounges, study carrels, a newspaper and magazine display section, a copier machine, and microfilm readers, the library facilitates personal endeavor.

The professional library staff consisting of Raymond Piller, Head Librarian; Mrs. Mamie Harris, Assistant Librarian; and Mrs. Nan Lacy, Cataloger, aid students in locating research sources. Trained student assistants add to the efficiency of book service.

English as a second language (corresponding to English 103 and 113) was added to the foreign language department curriculum for the benefit of international students.

In addition, plans are being made to offer courses next year in Choctaw and Russian.

In cooperation with the Oklahoma Foreign Language Teachers Association, a third study-travel program will be conducted this summer in Europe. The tour, "Contrast in Cultures," will take students to Denmark, Spain, France, Austria, Mallorca, Germany, Switzerland and Hungary.

Last summer, two SSC students, Kim McGehee and Pat Goodrich, spent their summer vacation in Mexico where they lived with a host family whose daughter, in return, lived as the guest of Durant families.

Dr. Alvin White, Director Division of Applied Science

The Division of Applied Sciences, under the direction of Dr. Alvin White, enjoyed an increase in enrollment of 30% over last year which necessitated the building of temporary laboratories in the old gym.

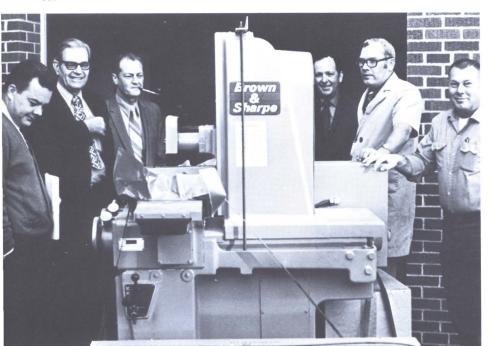

Two courses in graphic arts and several new technology courses in automotives, drafting, electronics and metals were added to the curriculum and approximately $30,000 worth of equipment will be received from the State Department of Vocational-Technical Education this year.

During the summer term, seven three-day workshops were conducted for the teachers of the disadvantaged and 400 teachers attended. These workshops were conducted in cooperation with the State Department of Vocational-Technical Education. Alvin White directed the workshops.

Home Economics

There are 70 majors currently enrolled in home economics for the 1970-71 academic year. Individual and special counseling for all majors is provided in an effort to determine the program which best meets the needs, interest and abilities of the students. The B.S. Degree is designed for pre-professional training for careers in nursing, dietetics, consumer problems and fashion merchandising.

A highlight of the department each year is the President's Banquet for Oklahoma Education Association delegates and guests, planned, prepared and served by the meal management class, with the art department providing the decorations.

The home economics department continues to keep up-todate in helping to meet current social problems as evidenced by participation in projects involved in training the high school drop-out, food service supervisors, Head-Start supervisors in Indian Service, preparing Special Teachers for working with disadvantaged groups, and currently, an adult class of 18 women, employed in cafeterias, nursing homes, and small hospitals receiving additional institutional training. Upon satisfactory completion of the 90 hour course and some work experience, they qualify for certified Food Service Supervisors.

TTT Program

The Oklahoma-Texas Triple-T Project is a federally supported program for training both teachers and supervisors for public schools and also the people who train teachers and supervisors, such as college faculty members — Triple-T stands for "Training the teachers of teachers." The project is in its second year; it is expected to continue for three more years.

The emphasis of the progect is on devising innovative programs and teaching techniques to attack current educational problems, particularly for ethnic minorities such as Blacks, Chicanoses, and Indians. Its shaping principle of operation is the cooperation of community, public schools, and colleges and universities in planning training programs.

Dr. Eugene E. Slaughter is Coordinator of the project, Claude Adams is Associate Coordinator. Subdirectors are Dr. Henry Gold, Dr. Joseph E. Littlejohn, Dr. Jack L. Robinson, and Dr. G. Pat Powers. These personnel manage the five main components of the project:

- (1) the community advisory committee,
- (2) the Experienced Teacher Fellowship Program for the Supervisors and other trainers of Elementary School Teachers of Reading,
- (3) The Doctoral Intern Program in Elementary Education,
- (4) The Experienced Teacher Fellowship Program in Elementary School Counseling, and
- (5) The freshman and sophomore programs in elementary education.

Auxiliary Staff

The department of auxiliary enterprises has made many improvements on campus during the 1970-71 school year.

New kitchen equipment expedited the service and improved the quality of food in the school dining hall. Several new pieces of equipment were purchased for the coffee shop, including a large ice flake machine. Metal shelving replaced the old wooden shelving in the bookstore and new items such as records, tapes, and magazines, added to the stock of merchandise. The black and white television sets in the dormitories were replaced with new color sets. The total amount of improvements rose above the $17,000 mark.

The State Food Show in Oklahoma City, the National Association of College Auxiliary Services Meeting in New Orleans, and the Regional Meeting of the College Bookstore Association in Dallas provided the auxiliary staffers an opportunity to keep abreast of new developments in their field.

UPWARD BOUND is in its fifth year of operation at Southeastern State College. Mrs. Jeanette Bear is in her third year as Director of the project while Leon Scott serves as Assistant Director.

UPWARD BOUND is designed to aid promising high school students who probably would not otherwise choose post high school education. The project serves approximately seventy-one students each year from an eight county area. Students are involved in an on-campus, summer enrichment program and a continuing motivational program throughout the academic-year. Presently there are approximately fifty Upward Bound graduates attending Southeastern State College in addition to numerous graduates who are attending other colleges and universities.

The project was honored at mid-term by its first college graduate, Leo Thompson, who graduated from UPWARD BOUND in the summer 1967. Leo is presently pursuing graduate work.

Whitchurch, Edward, Ardmore, 50,

It is never easy for an editor to just sit down and try to reflect on the past seven months. First, all I did was enroll in a Yearbook Production class and before I knew it, I was editor of the 1971 Savage. Things were definitely in a mess!! I didn't have a staff, so that was my first project. I finally recruited a great staff made up of six students.

In September, John Clark of American Yearbook Company came down and we started on the yearbook. It seemed like we spent hours and hours trying to pick out a color. We finally decided on blue with silver impressions. It was different and that's what we liked most about it. It wasn't fancy, but it was attractive.

Then came the day when we actually buckled down to work. Our first deadline was made up of seventeen pages with alternate pages in color. As I look back now, it seems that the first seventeen were the hardest to do. At the time we didn't have an advisor and the tension was almost unbearable.

It wasn't too hard trying to decide on a theme for the 1971 Savage. We put our heads together and came up with "Tomorrow Lies in Today." It's true isn't it? What are we in college for if not to make a better tomorrow?

In October right in the middle of our second deadline, we were blessed with an advisor, Mrs. Billie Letts. She was like an answer to a prayer, coming right when we needed her most. To Billie I give my most special thanks. Without her, the 1971 Savage wouldn't have been possible.

Many thanks go to Larry White who served as assistant editor. Beverly Scott, who was the academics editor deserves my sincerest appreciation. Her cooperation and assistance were a big help to me.

Thanks go to Lynda Garrett and Susy Kiser who were in charge of the advertising section. They spent many hours selling and laying out ads.

To Jo Lou Fernandez goes my deepest gratitude for the many hours of typing and identifying pictures.

Ruth Albin and Marsha Redding were responsible for the index section, perhaps one of the hardest jobs on a yearbook, and they deserve a lot of credit.

My deepest appreciation goes to Jane Dawkins, organizations editor. Having never worked on a yearbook before, Jane proved excellent in both the office and the darkroom.

Last, but not least, my thanks go to Steve Barker and his staff of photographers. Without Steve, there would be no yearbook.

It's all over now, and through the many long hours of work my staff and I have tried to bring you a true picture of SSC. Hopefully, in later years, you'll look through the 1971 Savage and remember the friendships and memorable events in your college life. It was a rewarding experience for me and I hope it was for you.

I give thanks to you, the students of SSC. This is your yearbook.
