Southeastern Oklahoma State University's hexagon-shaped seal identifies it as one of six sister institutions by the Board of Regents of Oklahoma Colleges. In the center is a replica of Morrison Hall, the building that is the embodiment of Southeastern. At the bottom of the seal is a single magnolia blossom, which represents the "Campus of a Thousand Magnolias." At the hexagon's center is a triangle, symbolizing the convergence of the geographic region's three rivers - Red River, Blue River and Washita River. At the base of the seal is the date of Southeastern's founding, 1909. On either side of the seal are two words - Progress and Education. Each word is given equal status, which conveys the message so boldly and simply: Progress through Education - Education through Progress.

The official seal of the university is reserved for use on diplomas, diploma covers, commencement materials, legal documents and publications produced by or for the Office of the President. The seal identifies University-wide policies and proceedings. It is not intended as a design element for university communications. The seal may also be used on documents produced by the Board of Regents for Oklahoma Colleges or the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education.

Southeastern Oklahoma State University occupies a campus of 176 acres. The first building on the campus was what is now Morrison Hall. Its construction began in 1909 and it was first used for classes in January 1911. In the meantime, classes were held in the old Durant Presbyterian College building, which had become available when the Presbyterian school moved to new quarters on the west edge of Durant.

Two landmark facilities, Morrison Hall and the Russell Building, have served the institution in many capacities. As the present campus evolved, additional buildings added through the years include nine academic buildings: Computer Science/Electronics, Fine Arts, Health/Physical Education and Bloomer Sullivan Gymnasium, Industrial Technology, Mathematics, Power Technology, Science, Visual Arts, and the Visual and Performing Arts Center. Other buildings added include: Administration, Center for Alumni and Advancement, Student Activity, Student Union/Bookstore, University Center, and five residential halls: Hallie McKinney, North Hall, Sherrer Hall, Chickasaw Tower and Choctaw Tower. Other facilities constructed include Paul Laird Stadium, the baseball and softball fields, and apartments for married students.

What R U Doin?

From the desk of Dr. Glen D. Johnson, president
Southeastern Oklahoma State University

Enrollment increases, budget decreases and ongoing renovation and construction projects were among the happenings over the course of the 2002-03 academic year at Southeastern Oklahoma State University.

Enrollment figures continued to grow – in fact, the spring 2003 totals marked the 10th consecutive semester in which enrollment has increased at the University. There are many reasons for this trend, including the opportunity for a quality higher education at an affordable cost; the strength and quality of our academic programs; and the personal attention that students receive from outstanding faculty in a small classroom setting.

We believe this demonstrates that Southeastern is well on its way to becoming the leading regional university for quality higher education in Oklahoma and northern Texas.

At the same time we have experienced enrollment increases, our operating budget allocated by the State has decreased significantly due to the steady decline in Oklahoma's revenue. Thus, we are placed in the unique position of actually serving more students and providing more services with fewer resources. As a university, we have worked through these budget challenges by continually striving to preserve our academic mission and limiting the negative impact of the budget cuts on our students.

The landscape of the Southeastern campus is changing through the many renovation and construction projects that are under way. A top priority for the University is the ongoing renovations to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Tower residence halls. A beautiful new addition to the campus is the Russell School Clock Tower, which stands outside the School of Business (Russell Building). A group of Russell School alumni worked with the Southeastern Foundation and the Choctaw Nation to provide funding for the clock tower that was dedicated during the Russell School Alumni reunion held in September 2002. We are also very proud of the $3.7 million renovation to our Biological Sciences Building on the northwest corner of our campus, which houses our biological sciences department.

Fund-raising events are also under way for a new $14 million Student Union facility. To provide space for this state-of-the-art facility, several older structures, including the old boiler room, Visual Arts Building, University Center, and the Campus Security Building will be demolished.

Southeastern Oklahoma State University is moving forward in significant ways to reach our vision of becoming the leading regional university for quality higher education in Oklahoma and north Texas. We have seen significant and positive developments during this academic year, but we strongly believe that the best is yet to come.

Sincerely,

President Glen D. Johnson

Volunteers exemplify King's dream

Students, faculty, community members lend a hand to others

By SARA STANGLIN

Staff writer

Taken from the January 24, 2003 edition of The Southeastern

While many students were sleeping in and enjoying a day off from school on Monday, a special group of student volunteers decided to make something of their holiday.

To this group it was not just a day off, it was a day on. It was their chance to show that King's dream did not die with him.

The day began with a ceremony, which included a slide show and floral tribute, honoring the life and work of King.

Erna Childress, campus landscaper, was asked to create a memorial to honor the late civil rights leader.

Gloria Kimiywi, master of ceremonies for the service, introduced several honored guests, including SOSU President Glen D. Johnson.

Musical celebration was provided by ambassadors from the Choctaw Nation, the Coffey Memorial Church of Christ, in Denison, and SOSU student, Bryan Dailey.

Johnson spoke along with several other faculty and staff members, but the focus of the rally was on what the Rev. Adrian Drake had to say.

Drake's speech got a wonderful range of responses from the crowd, from "amen" to laughter.

A first for this year were the Martin Luther King Jr. Day of Service awards.

Three students received these awards. Each student was given a plant that represented a different aspect of King's goal.

Recipients were Keenan Williams, Dignity; Regina Johnson, Freedom, and Kimiywi, Peace.

Following the rally, the group headed down to the Magnolia Apartments, a married housing unit recently placed under the control of Southeastern's residence life office.

There the volunteers spent the rest of the day beautifying the complex.

After being broken off into groups, the workers scraped chipping paint, raked and gathered leaves and trash, as well as cut back hedges.

They also worked on assembling playground equipment that was donated by a local business.

Overall, every one of the volunteers lived a little part of King's dream.

SpringFest a big success despite cold weather

By VICTORIA BRYAN

Contributing writer

Taken from April 11, 2003 issue of The Southeastern.

In spite of the week's chilling temperatures, which didn't live up to SpringFest's seasonal title, this year's event brought 14 teams together to enjoy four days of games and stress-relieving entertainment.

Kicking off on Sunday, teams tackled the grab bag relay competition that had each member eating one of the following items: a can of Vienna sausages, two Twinkies, 10 crackers, an apple, a banana and five caramel candies.

Later that evening teams competed in "Jeopardy: SOSU Style," an event coordinated by Tim Boatmun, a SOSU academic adviser.

On Monday, students enjoyed a filling lunch on the lawn, preparing themselves for the exhausting games later that day. Mud volleyball, kickball, earth ball and the obstacle course all got under way Monday afternoon with pleasant temperatures.

But overnight the temperatures dropped and the winds picked up, forcing teams to play in testy conditions on Tuesday.

One incident had two Student Government Association senators, who were transporting the large earth ball to the intramural field, chasing the bouncing rainbow-colored object down the highway.

Carrying over the excitement of the day's events, the first ever "Southeastern Idol" was held Monday evening with 16 competitors entering.

The competition, hosted by a SOSU public relations class, was open to the entire community as well as students.

Competitors sang, danced and played musical instruments, but at the end of the evening the first "Southeastern Idol" was George Wesley, who sang Justin Timberlake's "Cry Me A River."

Second place went to a Durant High School junior, and third went to SOSU student Ashley Roberts, who sang, "You Light up my Life."

Tuesday was day three of SpringFest XX. Games continued throughout the day, and that evening teams were given a list of 40 items to find during the annual "Scavenger Hunt."

Also that evening, the movie, "The Hot Chick," was played in the Magnolia Room with many students attending.

Bringing SpringFest to a close on Wednesday, teams competed in the final rounds of games and enjoyed the Mr. Southeastern/Savage Scandals competition sponsored by Cardinal Key.

Before announcing the SpringFest winners later that evening, a hot dog cook out and dance were held by the gazebo.

"This year's SpringFest went really well," said Nikki Reding, one of three chairs of the event. "We had our usual mishaps, but I feel confident that this year's event lived up to everyone's expectations."

C. Allin Means, student publications adviser

It is amazing how positive accomplishments can arise from challenging difficulties. A perfect example is this CD yearbook. Devised due to budget constraints and from a real desire to examine new ways to present Southeastern Oklahoma State University's 2002-03 historical record, The Savage yearbook is now presented in an all-digital format.

This past fall we gathered together as a team and posed these questions: How can we move away from this expensive, outdated, static printed document and put together a more lively, colorful, interactive yearbook? And, during the university's most difficult budget year in two decades, how can we save money at the same time? Ponder these questions for a moment. How do we produce a better, more desirable product, and accomplish this with less money?

The answer is The Savage yearbook on CD. It's loaded with hundreds of full-color photos instead of just a dozen or so in the printed yearbook. Set up like a typical Web site, the new digital yearbook is easy to navigate, complete with links to various clubs, organizations and special events. And its cost to the consumer is $10 less per unit than the old-fashioned printed yearbook. It's an absolute win-win.

Yearbook Editor Andrew Pagel embraced the challenge and has produced what I think is the most exciting yearbook in the history of Southeastern Oklahoma State University. I'm not saying this simply to build up one of our more dedicated students in the Communication and Theatre Department. I'm saying it because it is true. When I hold a traditional printed yearbook next to this CD yearbook and think about which one I would rather look at, I waste no time popping the CD yearbook into my computer and navigating its colorful pages. Andrew has done a fantastic job modernizing The Savage yearbook and setting a precedent for all yearbooks to follow. He has done this while maintaining the intention and integrity of the university's annual historical volume.

In a nutshell, The Savage yearbook on CD is brilliant. It is an outstanding product, and it is even more amazing when considering this is our first attempt at an all-digital yearbook.

Like perhaps no other time in history the media industry is looking for new and better ways to present messages to the public. The Savage on CD is one of several examples we have been incorporating into my Journalism Program and into Student Publications. As a program and as a yearbook, we are constantly working to stay on the cutting edge of technology and media message delivery. We owe it to our media students to keep them abreast of the changes taking place in modern media, and to train them accordingly. This CD yearbook is an excellent example of how we are staying on that cutting edge and pushing it into the future. For Student Publications, the Journalism Program and The Savage yearbook, the future is now.

Thank You

I want to thank the entire yearbook staff for all the hard work they have put into this yearbook and I also want to thank publications adviser Mr. C. Allin Means and everyone associated with SOSU's student publications for allowing me to be the yearbook editor for the past two years.

*Andrew Pagel
Savage yearbook editor
2002-03*

What R U Doin?

This year has brought great changes, not only globally as we see with the second war in Iraq, but also on a closer scale.

We have seen some of SOSU'S benefits cut due to the budget reductions and we in the student publications office were faced with a real challenge of how to improve our product while also saving the university money.

But thanks to the forward thinking of publications adviser C. Allin Means, and a few sleepless nights on my part, we came up with a solution that is not only cheaper but is more advanced than all the yearbooks of the past--this CD yearbook.

This yearbook not only taps into all the memories that go into the old yearbook through the use of stoic text and pictures, but it combines these with a modern look and sound in a smaller package that is more user friendly and nicer looking.

I could not have designed this modern yearbook without my staff of layout artists and photographers.

I want to thank Chris Staiger for the many hours he spent gathering up photos for me even after he resigned from student publications.

I also want to thank Ruth Shivar and Sara Stanglin, who jumped in and started working on the yearbook with me even though I can be rather intense, as I am described by Mr. Means. They both showed improved design skills and an industriousness that will serve them well in their future careers.

Sara not only designed pages but also spent a large amount of her time covering Southeastern's rodeo team and taking several pictures of them and also the Super Savage Leaders. This was a great help to me.

Who could forget Kristen Roper and Katie Kaiser? They, through the use of whatever techniques they possess, got many photos that no one could possibly get, and I am ever thankful for that and their peculiar antics in the newsroom that always made me smile.

Catherine Palmore was an essential part of the yearbook staff who just stumbled into the student publications office this year. She was immediately given assignments, and she cheerfully fulfilled them. Thank you Catie-Dan.

Bruce Jackson, who graduated in December, is a fellow artist and designer who lent his talents to the yearbook by designing the letters on the cover and allowing me to use a few of his cartoons to adorn the yearbook. Thank you, Bruce. We will always remember you.

I can't forget all the offices on campus who went out and got photos of their staff members and sent them in to be placed for the first time in the yearbook. Thank you all for taking the time out of your busy schedules to do this.

I also want to thank the Welcome Center and especially Dan Hoke, because without that office's assistance and Dan's willingness to share photos, this yearbook would not be what it is.

The telecommunications office was always willing to lend a helpful hand not only as a place to escape for a little while, but also by allowing Hal Free to give some advice when needed. Thank you for your time and understanding.

And of course every year I never fail to mention Dana Bell, secretary for communication and theatre. She is not only a great plethora of knowledge but also a wonderful therapist and friend who will listen to any stressed-out individual. Thanks Dana, you are truly a great person.

Last but not least, I am truly grateful to Mr. Means and all the students associated with the student publications office. Without their understanding of my "intense" ways, and their all-digital form for the first time in school history. Thank you all for your support and understanding.

I hope this yearbook reflects the fond memories we all shared at SOSU during the scholastic year of 2002-03. I know it does that for me and makes me look forward to a future of even grander possibilities.

Sincerely,

Andrew Pagel

During the end of the fall semester, SOSU senior Mike Harkins and other theatre members were in a waiting game, but now the verdict is in: “Optophobia” has won and is moving on to the Regional Festival in Fort Worth.

The multiple award-winning nomination performance of “Optophobia,” written by Harkins, competed against 80 productions in the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival in late September and has been selected to contend at the next level, which will be Feb. 25 through March 1 at Texas Christian University.

“I never thought that I’d have this opportunity,” said Harkins, whose opening scene originated from boredom during a class and was further developed by the encouragement of Dell McLain, director of theatre at Southeastern.

In order to advance, a production must be nominated by the National Selection Team or a designated respondent.

There are eight regional festivals held nationally, with only an average of six productions being nominated to perform from each region.

The festivals’ ultimate goal is to select the productions that will perform at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., where the national awards are presented.

Only four full-length plays and one short play end up in Washington, D.C., out of hundreds competing.

Southeastern participates in the Region VI Festival, meaning the university competes with performances from schools in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

For the competition in Fort Worth, “Optophobia’s” script has been reduced so that it can vie for the John Cauble Short Play Award, rather than contend as a full-length play, which it was originally.

“I’m happier with the changes,” said Harkins, whose hour and 30-minute play was cut to an hour. “I got the chance to solve some problems and include some changes that I wanted to make initially.”

The Cauble Award isn’t the only major prize that “Optophobia” is vying for. The script is also competing for the National Student Playwriting Award.

Both honors include a guaranteed publication and a cash award. The production is also entered in several other smaller categories.

“What may really help us,” said McLain, “is that we will be the last to perform out of the entire nation. We will be the freshest production on the judges’ minds.”

“Optophobia” could prove that last is best as it is scheduled for the last day, in the absolute last time slot of all the regional festivals.

“We’ve got a great slot,” said Harkins. “We’re the last region, and the last show in that region.”

Harkins, who not only wrote the play, but appears as the main character as well, added, "It makes me a bit nervous to think that I will be the last character the judges will see on stage."

To prepare for the regional festival, there will be a remount production at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 21, in Montgomery Auditorium. Admission is free for students.

Call 745-2794 for more information.

"The whole thing has been wonderful," said Harkins. "It's been extremely stressful, but it's a good stress."

Savages boot ECU

By MATT THOMAS

For the second year in a row, the KTEN Savage-Tiger Classic fell to the foot of a kicker. And for the second year in a row, Southeastern came out on top in the longstanding rivalry.

A season ago, ECU kicker Cody Finney missed the extra point that would have tied the game in overtime, allowing the Savages to hold onto a 42-41 win.

In this season's meeting, with six seconds remaining on the clock and the ball spotted on the Tiger 20-yard line, junior kicker John White trotted out on the field and knocked home a 37-yard field goal to drop ECU, 20-17.

"I was nervous when I went out there the first time," White said, reflecting on the kick. "But as the timeouts were called (by ECU), I actually got relaxed and felt comfortable. I knew it was good as soon as I kicked it."

White was honored by the LoneStar Conference as the north division special teams player of the week.

"The kicking game was a question for us in the preseason," Savage head coach Keith Baxter said this week. "We had struggled early in the year, but it had come together as the season went on. John stepped up for us and was huge for us on Saturday."

The season-closing win accentuates a great turnaround in the program from a year ago, turning the 3-7 Savages of 2001 into a 7-3 team this season, with Baxter collecting his second win in as many tries in the SOSU-ECU series.

"The game was very intense and a great one to watch," said Jennifer Cagle, a junior cheerleader. "The Savages came through during key times of the game. They really showed what they were made of. It was a great day for a Savage victory."

The cheerleaders were kept busy in the fourth quarter as ECU entered with a 17-7 lead.

White closed the gap to 17-10 with a 29-yard field goal with 10:33 to play.

Then junior wide receiver Romar Crenshaw, who had a 63-yard touchdown reception in the second quarter, struck again with a 72-yard TD catch to tie things up at 17 with 7:04 remaining before White came through with the game-winner as time expired.

"What a great ending to the season," said Dave Wester, SOSU sports information director. "It's always a great feeling to beat your rival, especially at the end of the season."

Students across campus agreed.

"I thought it was great that we beat ECU," said senior Frankie Lewis "This was my last SOSU-ECU game to attend as a student. The players played well, and congrats to all the seniors."

"It's about respect.' That was the motto at the beginning of the season," said Jay Lindly, host of Savage Sports Beat on KSSU. "They earned mine the way they finished the season."

Homecoming True Blue in 2002 came and went, with many events enjoyed by all.

On Monday, Oct. 21, Student Senate showed the movie "Spiderman," which has not yet been released on video. According to Jeff Burkhalter, Homecoming co-chair, about 100 people attended the movie.

Thursday, Oct. 24, was the Homecoming dance, which had a good turnout of about 150 people.

DJ Chris Hall, a student at SOSU, provided music for the dance.

The decorations were better than last year, according to Tara McMullin, a student who attended the dance.

When asked if the dance was a success, Burkhalter said it definitely was.

"I'd like to give a special thank you to Kappa Sigma for helping with the decorations for the dance" said Burkhalter.

Friday, Oct. 25, students voted in front of the bookstore for Homecoming queen and king, and also for Big Man On Campus.

Saturday, Oct. 26, was the big day.

The merchant fair, which included many organizations as well as a few stores, took place in the morning. Also, the SOSU jazz band and the Chorvettes performed while lunch on the lawn was served.

Next was the Homecoming parade. Out of all the float entries, the Catholic Student Association received first place with its float consisting of farmers, and even a live goat. Second place went to the Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity, and the third place float winner was the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

For the walking entries, Lambda Pi Eta earned first place, Alpha Sigma Tau received second place, and third place went to the Baptist Collegiate Ministries.

Following the parade was the Homecoming football game. SOSU beat Southwestern Oklahoma State, 36-13, in front of more than 3,000 spirited fans packing the home stands.

Before the game, President Glen D. Johnson recognized distinguished SOSU alumni.

In the first half of the game, wide receiver Romar Crenshaw caught the ball and ran 96 yards for a touchdown, making it the third longest in SOSU history.

During halftime, the band performed, and then the coronation began.

Big Man On Campus went to Clayton Whitaker from the Kappa Sigma fraternity, with $595.01 collected.

The BMOC contest was sponsored by Cardinal Key, who raised a total of $830.62 for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation.

The Homecoming sweepstakes contest winner was the Kappa Sigma fraternity. The organization that participates in the most Homecoming events wins sweepstakes.

Also, a window-decorating contest was held for students in the residence halls. First place went to Scott Seton, who lives in North Hall, second place went to Gera Claxton of Chickasaw Hall, and third place went to Crystal Harrison of Chickasaw Hall.

SOSU suspends cheerleading

Economic crunch hits home as budget planners make tough call

By MATT THOMAS

Staff writer

When the Savages take the field this fall, the sidelines will be a little quieter.

In what is the first official action taken by SOSU's administration regarding its most recent wave of budget cuts, the university has suspended the cheerleading program indefinitely.

The announcement was made earlier than others on account of the upcoming cheerleading tryouts, which have subsequently been cancelled.

The cut looks to save between $11,000 and $15,000 which the cheerleading program spent annually, according to Liz McCraw, dean of students and Spirit Squad adviser.

This money includes uniforms, travel expenses and equipment, but not included in the budget were other items of overhead such as school insurance and scholarships.

Money to support the program comes from student activities fees charged along with tuition.

"The temporary suspension of this program is a huge loss for the university," McCraw said this week. "During these difficult budgetary times, the suspension of one or more of our university programs is inevitable. Coaching requirements, travel, training camp, uniforms and supplies make the cheerleading program expensive to operate."

Current cheerleaders were informed of the decision at a squad meeting on Wednesday, March 26, and prospective squad recruits were notified the same week. The squad's coach, B.J. Hopkins, was a first-year coach who traveled from Ardmore to Durant to work with the SOSU cheerleaders.

When members of the program offered to be a self-supporting organization, the idea was vetoed by administration, citing matters of maintaining safety and institutional control of the program.

"The cheerleading program has always been an integral part of student life and involvement on campus," said Vice President for Student Services Sharon Berish. "It is more important than ever that the students, staff and faculty at Southeastern continue to support our athletic programs."

"It's sad that it had to happen to three returning seniors," said senior cheerleader Hawkins. "It's also sad to see the program go after coming so far in the past two years."

No timeline has been established for the program's reinstatement, but officials remain optimistic.

"It is our hope that the economy will rebound, making it possible to reinstate this program as soon as fiscally possible," said McCraw.

SOSU hosts R.O.C.K conference

By JENI MAPLE

News editor

Student delegates from five universities came together on the Campus of a Thousand Magnolias Friday, Nov. 8, and Saturday, Nov. 9, for the 2002 R.O.C.K. Conference.

R.O.C.K., or Restoring Our Community Kinship, is an effort to create and encourage strong leadership skills.

This year's theme was "Empowering Leaders with a Multicultural Awareness."

Participating universities were SOSU, East Central University, Kansas University, Austin College and Northeastern Oklahoma State University. Together, 115 students were in attendance.

Registration began Thursday, Nov. 8, followed by a social in the Savage Grill, giving participants a chance to meet and mingle.

Friday was full of informational workshops and a panel discussion at 3 p.m. Saturday, the workshops began again, and that afternoon, the delegates attended the SOSU-ECU football game.

After the final dinner Saturday evening, keynote speaker Robert Paige of Kansas University addressed participants about the responsibility of leadership.

"I know I'm preaching to the choir," said Paige, "but the choir needs to rehearse, too."

He closed his speech with a piece of advice. "Forgive and forget and move on. That's the best advice I can give you."

Then awards were presented to students and faculty.

"I truly believe that every student received very valuable lessons in leadership at this conference, and it connected students from all over the world," said Camille Phelps, SOSU multicultural coordinator.

Most credit for the landscaping and planting of trees and shrubs on the campus goes to Professor E.B. Robbins, long-time professor of agriculture. A Mississippian, he emphasized magnolias but also undertook to plant at least one tree of every species native to Oklahoma. Because of his work, Southeastern is known as the "Campus of a Thousand Magnolias."

New eatery has modern feel

Art's combines bohemian atmosphere, style to bring in younger crowds

By ANDREW PAGEL

Staff writer

The atmosphere of the new Art's Eatery on Main Street in Durant is trendy and youthful.

Fashioned not in the typical Southwestern décor common to our region of the world, Art's is artistically arranged and decorated like a modern cafe.

This creative and enticing design comes from the hours of labor by owner Chuck Karn and his staff, including Brittany Jackson, the head utilitarian, Curtis Kitchens, evening manager, and Ty Kitchens, baristo/waiter.

They refurbished the old building which was once a blacksmith shop.

During the renovation, they discovered a unique set of windows that open laterally instead of horizontally, which the blacksmith would open to release the noxious fumes and allow cool air in. These windows currently section the seating area from the serving area.

The renovations also revealed a taller ceiling and old brick work that Karn used to his advantage by implementing it into his design.

All the artwork on the walls and coffee cups are works of the staff. Each piece has its own character which the artist is more than willing to discuss.

Actress Shelly Long created the boar's head that hangs over the salad section of the serving line, and Karn is more than happy to tell its tale.

Being a renaissance man, Karn has held many titles including high school football coach, businessman, art teacher, woodshop teacher, inventor and owner of patents on clothing.

A native of Denver, Colo., Karn holds an art degree and has a background in architectural design.

All this knowledge enabled Karn to create his designs, which is described as being an industrial eclectic mix.

Seattle native Heather Summerville is the hostess/barrista, a woman who makes espresso drinks and greets the customers.

Her warm smile invites one to sit and listen to her tale of working in coffee for the past six years. She is happy serving people because she likes to connect with them and be a part of their lives by giving them caffeine, which allows her to be a bright spot in their day.

Summerville wanted to be a bartender, but she doesn't like drunks, so she decided to work in coffee.

With this career she could still "make really cool awesome drinks and not have to deal with drunks," she said. "Coffee people are the best people in the world."

After her training at what she described as a coffee boot camp, Summerville went to work at an espresso bar that expanded into a juice, sandwich and espresso bar.

She opened up her own business, but due to the over-saturation of coffee shops in Seattle, the business was not a success.

Summerville knew then that in order to do well in the coffee world, she had to do it outside of Seattle.

After she and her husband, Danny, along with their two girls, moved to Durant, Summerville took a year off to acclimate herself to the entirely new atmosphere southerners create.

One day her husband was talking to Karn, who mentioned there was going to be an espresso bar in his new restaurant.

Danny asked him some questions about the machine then suggested that Karn meet with Heather. Karn asked Heather specific questions about the machine and then hired her.

Coffee isn't her entire life. "I want to learn everything, be everything, and go everywhere," said Summerville.

Holding these aspirations in the back of her mind, Summerville continues her day-to-day activities, connecting with people and serving a wakeful jolt of caffeine to those who are willing to share a tale or two.

Since the opening of Art's Eatery, the public has accepted Art's and patronize it quite frequently.

"I have been five times in two days," said Kathy Carrington, director of public relations of SOSU. "I love this place."

Karn wanted to create Art's because, according to him, people need to know that in "bombed-out Wal-Mart towns, there are opportunities."

He has succeeded in one aspect of his goal.

Art's does provide the opportunity for its patrons to enjoy a menu that is always original.

Coffee is served with a smile and good conversation in an atmosphere that embodies the intelligence of an artist mixed with today's fashionable and modern décor.
