A CLOSER LOOK . . .

The alarm clock provides a rude awakening

... a bit of preparation for the day ...

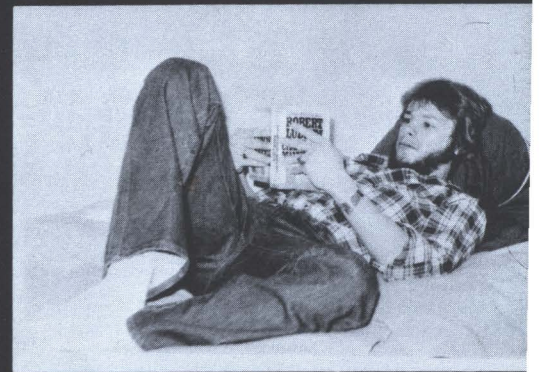

... class ends with special instruction ...

Back to class with the usual rush ...

... finally, lunch break ...

... afternoon class, the last for the day ...

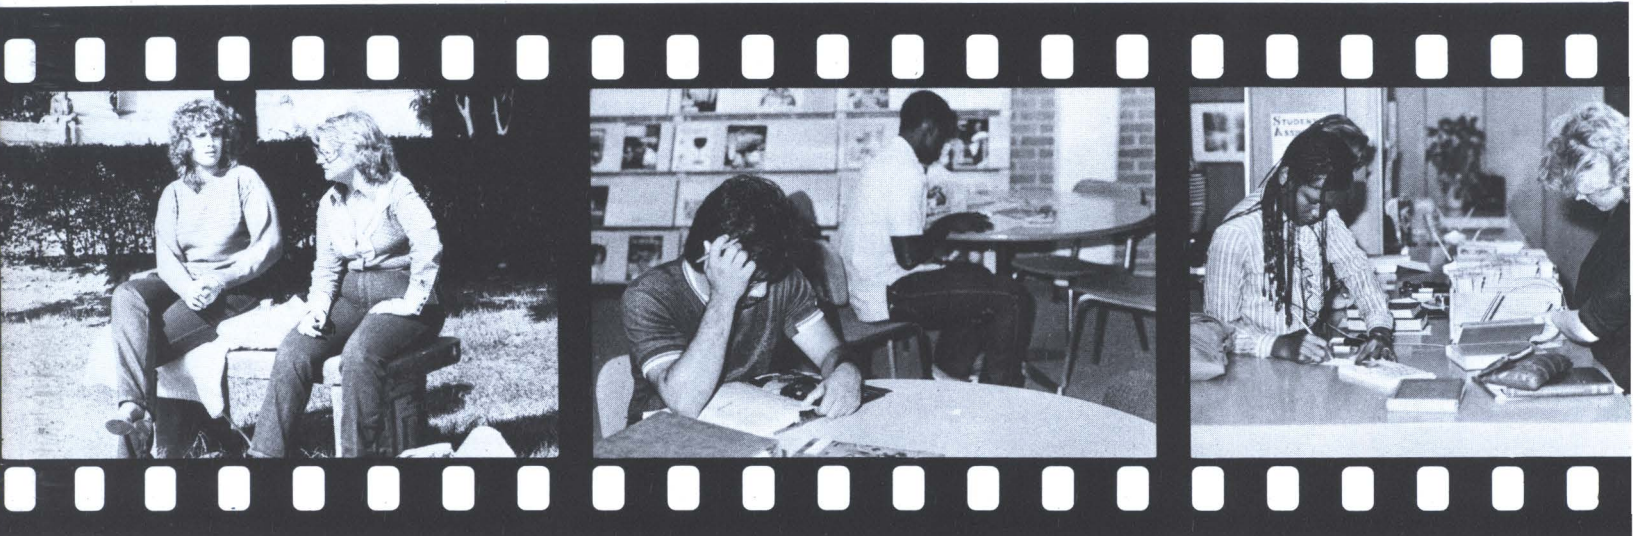

Back at home, a glance at the day's events

... dinner, one way or the other ...

... then settling down with a good book ...

... A DAY AT SOSU

... class break means chatting with friends ...

... a few moments of study time ...

... and checking out books needed for classes.

... making plans for later with friends ...

... the neverending line on student payday ...

... then a few games of "rec ball".

... going out on a date (a rarity for some) ...

... pigging out at a party ...

... and finally, a little studying and total collapse!

In Remembrance Of . . .

*James L. "Pudgy" Bowers
1928-1982*

James L. Bowers was better known to all the students, faculty and staff as "Pudgy," a good man with a kind heart. He loved fishing, hunting, teaching, his students, and, most especially, his family.

It was his love of fishing that lured he and a friend, Rev. Weldon Lasater, away on a sunny Wednesday afternoon. He told his class, "I'll see you Friday" and left with a cheery wave. But for the friends, Friday never came.

"Pudgy" and his friend were found murdered not far from a favorite fishing spot near Antlers.

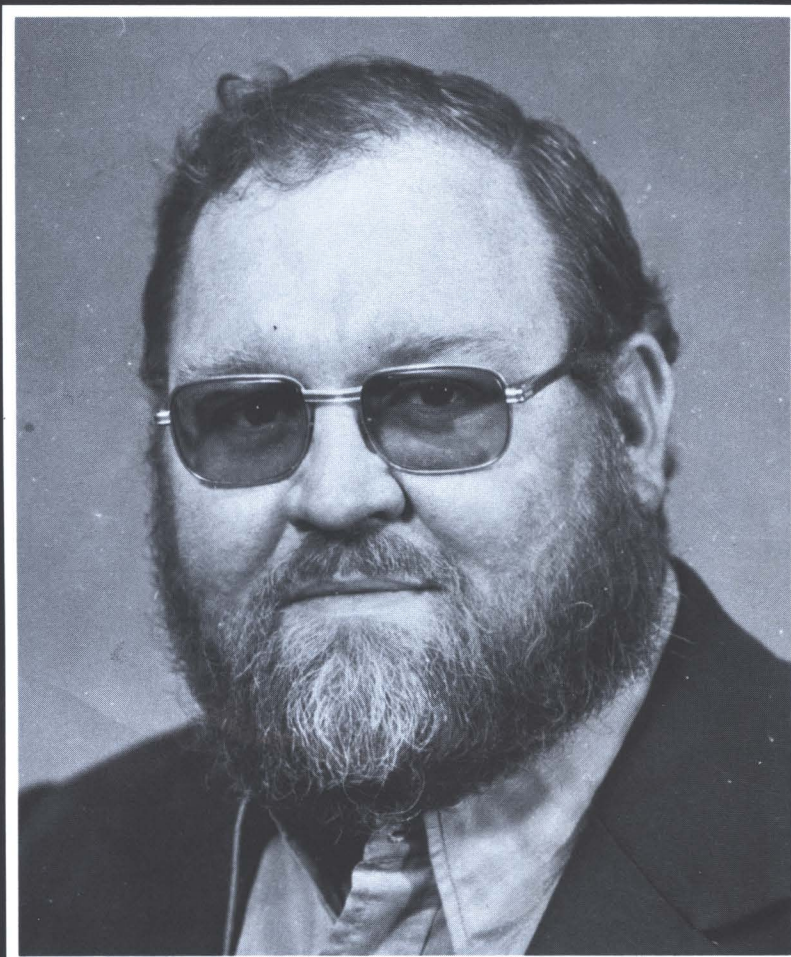

Although he is gone, his kindness remains as loving memories. "He is not gone, but just away."

The flags of Oklahoma, the United States and Southeastern were flown at half-staff following the deaths of beloved teacher and colleagues. Often students w

A Dedication:

The students and faculty of Southeastern dedicate this book to the memories of James Bowers and Frank Wade.

Frank Wade
1938–1982

Dr. Frank Wade was known as a giant among men — not only in stature, but mainly in heart. He loved life and lived it to its fullest — enjoying the company of his students and his family.

He gave much of his time to the improvement of relations for international students and often would be found helping a lonely student far from home.

He was devoted to his family. He would smile when anyone mentioned their names and say, “I’m proud of them.” He was going to his father who was very ill when Dr. Wade died.

Although he is no longer with us, a spark of Dr. Wade remains in the lives of his friends who value their memories of this good man.

glance through an open classroom window at the flags and remember some kind deed done by Mr. Bowers or Dr. Wade.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . .

Homecoming — a time for the past and present, it seems to bring out the spirit of fun, festivity and competition in everyone. For some, it may also bring back memories of times past when Southeastern was “home” to them also. Whatever the feeling, an air of gaiety prevails. An anticipation of good times grows, leading to a climax on the football field on Saturday night . . .

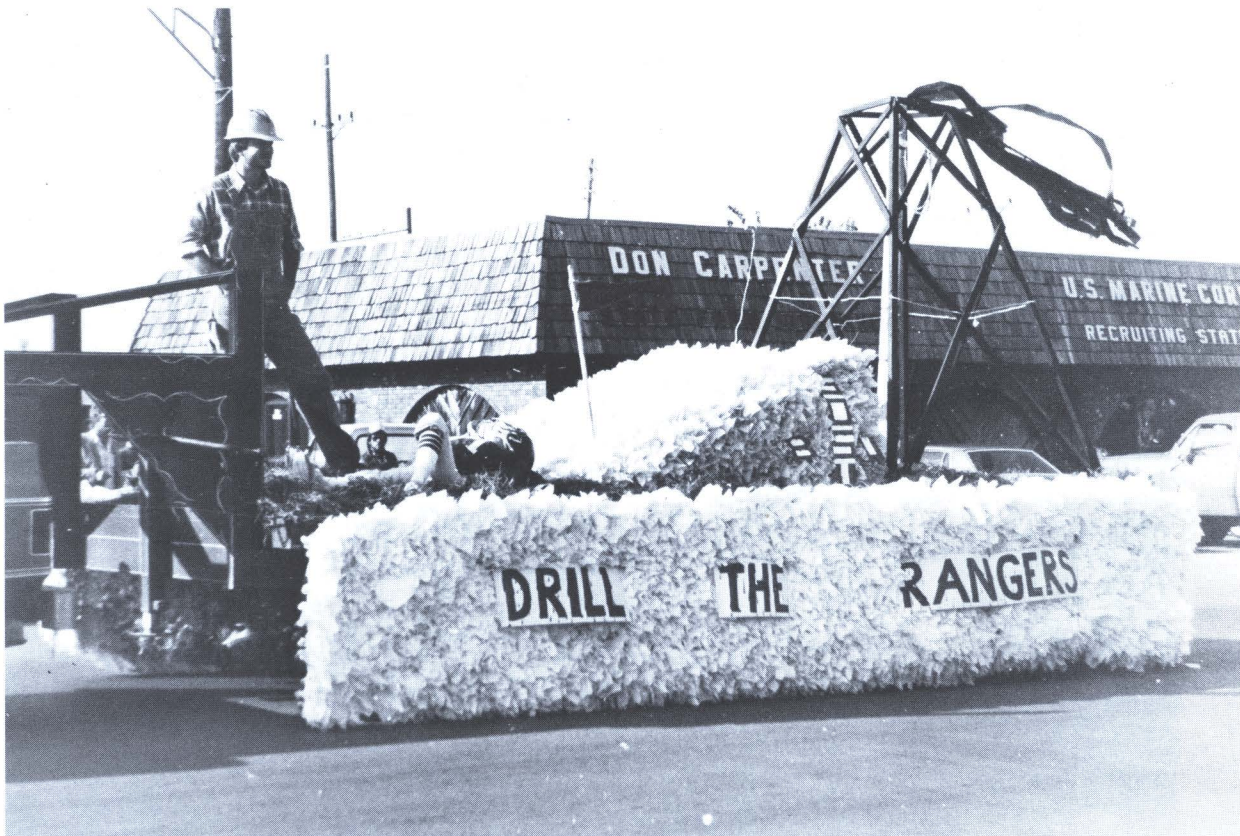

The festivities began with the coronation of the Homecoming Queen, Karen Wilson. A dance was held in conjunction with the coronation and as the pictures suggest, a good time was had by all escorts, candidates and others alike.

... HOMECOMING WEEK

In the following Saturday's traditional Homecoming Parade, THE SOUTHEASTERN won the float competition with an entry representing John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath.

The Baptist Student Union captured second place in the float competition with an entry representing the oil industry in Oklahoma and also expressing a desire to "Drill the Rangers (Northwestern)".

THE PARADE

Baptist Student Union Homecoming Queen Candidate Lori Morrison enjoys her ride atop a Corvette in the parade.

Many Return to School (MRS) garnered third place in the float competition with a float entitled "75 Years of Continuous Education."

The American Chemical Society entered a float to honor Oklahoma's Diamond Jubilee and the many aspects of Oklahoma.

CONTINUES . . .

Karen Wilson took her place of honor in the parade as the crowd looked on.

Sigma Kappa entered a float entitled "Black Gold" representing one of Oklahoma's most prominent industries, the oil industry.

The Psychology Club's entry in the float competition was entitled "Spirits of Statehood" representing the pioneering spirit of Oklahoma.

FROM PRESENTATIONS . . .

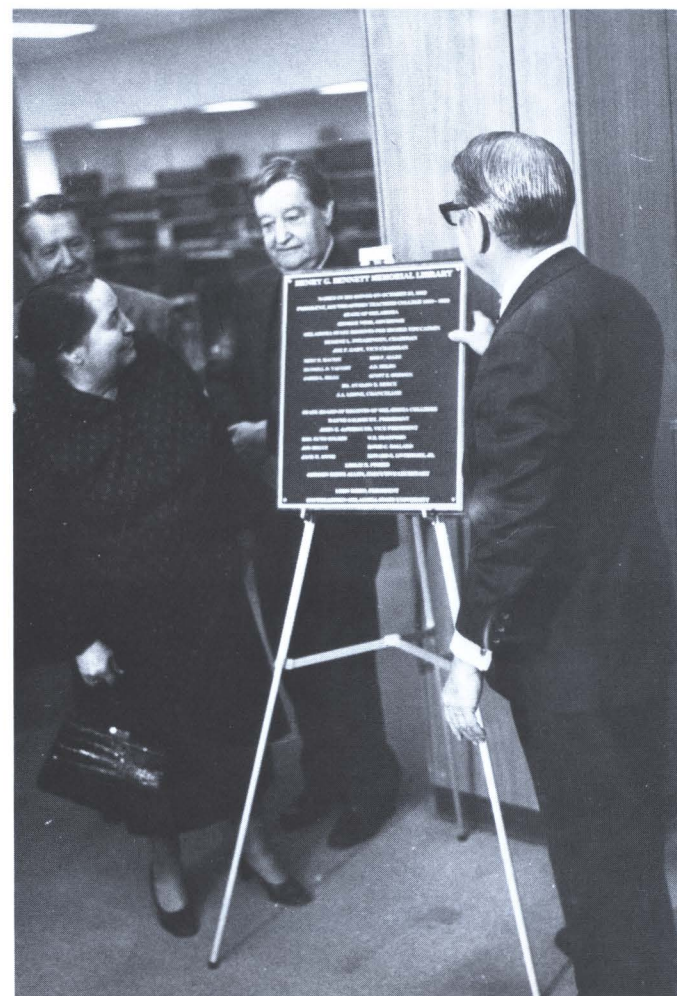

Southeastern Oklahoma State University library officially became the Henry Garland Bennett Library as part of the school's annual Homecoming activities. Dr. Bennett, a past president of Southeastern and Oklahoma State University, was also appointed permanent director of the nation's "Point Four Program." His leadership in education and pioneering in this area led to the building of the framework of higher education as we know it in Oklahoma.

Dr. Bennett was responsible for many innovations in the two colleges he served as president as well as helping to set up programs elsewhere in fire training, technical training, national defense training and agricultural training. Under President Harry S. Truman's administration, the Point Four Program was set up for "peace and freedom", the fourth point of which was "to embark on a bold new program for making the benefits of our scientific advances and industrial progress available for the improvement and growth of the underdeveloped areas," a program of which Bennett was destined to be named permanent director.

His concern for international affairs was part of the reason for this appointment. His desire to educate and assist can be summed up in a quote from a speech to the OSU faculty in 1939, "I should like to see one generation reared and educated from cradle to maturity with the benefit of all that we know about medicine, health and hygiene, formal education and psychology. I should like to see one generation . . . grow up free from disease, social or biological or mental malnutrition or maladjustment, in happy and healthy learning situations. Truly, I believe here lies the pathway to Utopia."

The library bore a new name for the presentation ceremony on Saturday.

The plaque commemorating the memorial dedication (right) now stands in the entrance to the library.

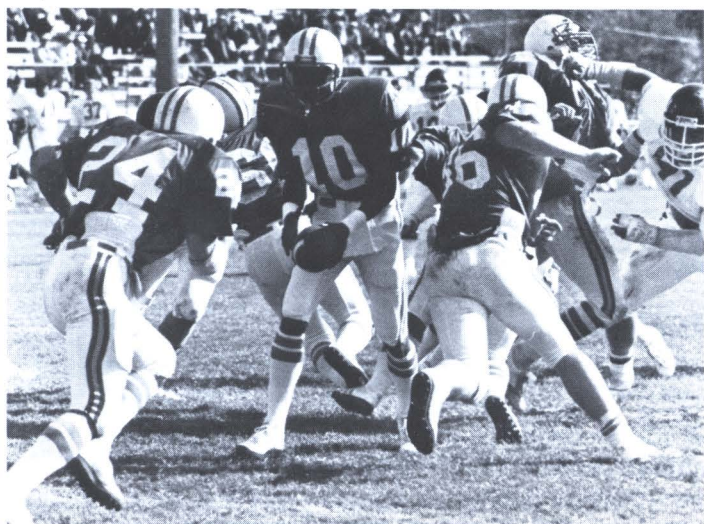

... TO CONFRONTATIONS

A day of confrontation describes the Saturday game against Northwestern. From start to finish, the game was exciting, anxious and finally the climax — victory! A closer look at the big game (counterclockwise, from top) . . .

Coach "Red" Rutherford sets up a play with players (linebacker Kevin Hime in the foreground). John Walker seems to be trapped for a crushing tackle in his attempt to gain some yardage. Nathaniel Brown prepares to hand off to Daniel Veazey as Danny Odom and John Walker rush in. Well into the game, some tense moments just spur determination as Shan Kirtley, Don Mullenix and Nathaniel Brown await the hike. Pressing on, Darryl Coats leaves a trailing teammate blocking as Butch Bond looks on.

HALFTIME HONORS . . .

A pause for halftime brought with it a time for honors. Amid the colors and excitement of the band and halftime performances, two outstanding men were recognized for their achievements and excellence in a number of areas. Take a look . . .

Surprise was evident on Dr. Don Parham's face as his name was announced.

Recognized as an outstanding athlete and coach, Dr. Parham's number was retired, only the third from Southeastern to receive such honored treatment.

An embrace for President Hibbs and a smile reflect Dr. Parham's feelings regarding the honor, a surprising and sentimental presentation for many.

Buddy Spencer was recognized as the Southeastern Oklahoma State University Distinguished Alumni for 1982 for his contributions during his college years and his continuing contributions to Southeastern.

... VICTORIOUS ENDING!

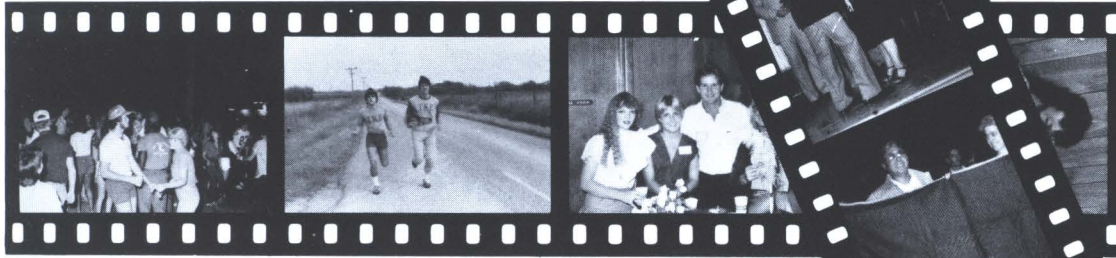

A victorious ending to Homecoming Week made the festivities complete. The climax to a fun-filled week of excitement, Southeastern's 21-14 win over Northwestern was the crowning moment for all. It fulfilled the hopes and dreams of many, rewarding hard work and determination. Later, the effects of exhilaration would fade, but oh, that final moment — moment of sweet victory! Look at the final moments . . .

In the dwindling moments of the game, Nathaniel Brown (left) passes the ball as Daniel Veazey helps out to the side. Coach Ron Newsome scrutinizes the action on the field (middle, left) as the game winds down. A look of ecstasy on his face, Coach "Red" Rutherford (middle, right) shakes hands all around. "We're number one!" seems to be the consensus of Savages Troy

Barner and Barry Herrera (bottom, left) as the victory is completed. An embrace and a smile are all Dee Dee Mangrum needs (bottom, right) to express how she feels about husband Dusty and the victory.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . STUDENT LIFE

Student life ranges from studying all hours of the night to playing on weekends and "free" evenings. Student life is playing in the fountain when no one is looking or napping beneath spring trees. It is the time of life when the world is a friend and school is an experience to be savored and remembered.

Dear Mom and Dad,

I just love going to school at Southeastern Oklahoma State University. It is nothing like back home. Why, even the alphabet is different. Instead of "A is for Apple, B is for Boy," the campus alphabet is more exciting and fun. Let me show you what I mean . . .

THE SAVAGE

A

A PARTMENT LIFE

Apartment life is one of the things students dream about as they make their move from home to college. The "pit" (as a lot of the places are known affectionately) takes on the personality of the occupants and their friends. Decorating the home becomes almost as important as getting around to studying.

BROKE

College costs money. Sometimes, pocket money or change has to keep a student going for a month or more — until the paycheck or money from home gets delivered. The extras in a college student's life take a lot of money, too. Hitting the right spot for a study session, taking a date to the best place around, field trips to Dallas or Oklahoma City, little things like toothpaste or soap, books, paper and so forth, bite into the savings accounts and “nickels and dimes” disappear in a hurry.

CARS

Cars are everywhere on campus — and they are hardly ever parked in the right positions as indicated by the parking space lines. But nonetheless, cars are a vital part of the college student's life at SOSU. The commuters depend upon them to get them to Durant safely and quickly. The resident students depend upon them to get them out of Durant. Cars are a bit of a status symbol — from the modified 'Vette to the old clunker with 20 kinds of paint holding the rust together.

Books piled to the ceiling, clothes scattered across the room, alarms standing next to stereo equipment — this is dorm life. Students sharing bathrooms or bedrooms for the first time find the activities a bit trying at first as they rush in for a quick shower five minutes before class begins and finds a roommate beating them to the hot water.

DORM LIFE

ENROLLMENT

Enrollment is more than just standing in line waiting to see an advisor or dean, or waiting to have your money taken to pay for classes, or even trying to buy books. A major part of enrollment is computer cards linking the student to a particular class. Enrollment is time. It takes time to find the right class available and to go through the different lines to get the right signatures. It takes time to decide what direction your education will take as a student goes through enrollment.

FRIENDS

Friends are the best part of college life. Strangers in class often become the best of friends while working an algebra problem or struggling with a research paper. Friends are there for advice or to give a shoulder to cry on when that special date turns out to be a dog. This part of campus life is almost the best part of college because a friend is for life.

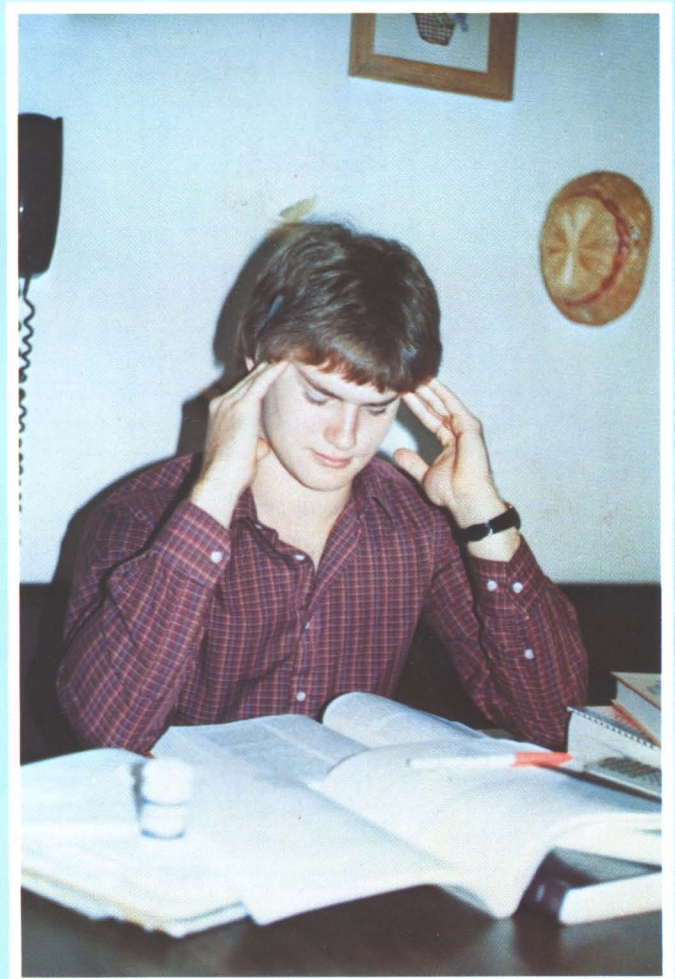

GEO'S

Geo's Drive-In. It's an institution just on the fringe of campus. It's almost a graduation requirement to have eaten a Number Four or tasted the golden fries or sipped a sugary coke from the restaurant that has lasted 35 years. He does the hamburgers his way and what a way it is. Each bite is prepared to perfection and shows pride taken in making it that way.

HEADACHES

Headaches are a part of campus life. Too loud stereos, too late studying, too much partying or a case of the flu can bring on a headache. The cure — other than aspirin — is get away from it all by escaping to the movies or library or even just running around town with friends.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

International students add flavor to the campus culture. Their presence includes a look at their countries and social lives "back home" in places most people read about and imagine as storybook lands.

JUNKFOOD JUNKIES

Junkfood junkies become prevalent during finals week or just before homecoming and major tests. Donuts, cupcakes, colas and chips become big sellers at the neighborhood grocery stores and coffee shops as those hooked satisfy their sweettooths and grease habits. It strikes every one from the all-A honor student to the most dignified professor to the rarely seen student in the 7 a.m. classes. Junk food is a big part of college life in 1982-83.

KISSING

KISSING I and II should be orientation classes, according to some freshmen who give Southeastern a "10". A quiet corner or a dark hallway offer the perfect place to steal a moment of romance. Bolder students find the areas around the fountain or amphitheatre to be favorite places for an afternoon of "sparking."

LAKE TEXOMA

Lake Texoma is only 15 minutes away by car or a half hour by bicycle. Its deep blue waters and sand shores offer students sun, fun and lots of relaxation. It is a good place to have a summer swim party or an evening cookout. Groups and clubs plan activities at the Lake because of the diversity of its facilities.

MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

Women (and men) returning to school often find themselves with their young children and no babysitter available. Understanding professors help them find a way for them to attend class and make sure the youngsters are taken care of at the same time. The campus is also a good place for mothers to bring their children on a sunny afternoon for a walk or play time.

NO PARKING

No parking zones and signs are found on campus and usually ignored by thoughtless drivers. These same drivers usually ignore the spaces reserved for handicapped drivers and pull in anyway.

OCEAN PACIFIC

Ocean Pacific shirts are everywhere the discriminating college student goes — to the market, the post office, or even on trips to the ocean. The student who “goes with the flow” found Ocean Pacific to be the only thing to wear for nearly all occasions.

PHONE HOME

Just like E.T., many college students “phoned home” every chance they got. It could have been to tell Mom hello or Dad about that special someone. The phone also served as a link to the stomach — calling in orders to the pizza place or the drive-ins. The phone also makes a great study center as students would compare notes from the comfort of their armchairs.

QUIET WALKS

RELAXATION

Playing pool or just hanging around — relaxation took many forms around campus. Students could drop in the game room or coffee shop for visiting friends. They could swim laps in the pool or just daydream under the magnolias.

Quiet walks with friends around the campus let many students find peace and relaxation. It gave them time to calm down after a hectic day or to walk off a heavy meal at the cafeteria. A quiet walk gave some couples time to find out about each other.

SOAP OPERAS

“Another World” — “All My Children” — “General Hospital” can be heard floating through the halls as the co-eds tune in for their favorite soap. Even professors have been known to fix their lunch hours in order to catch a particularly interesting show. Students are notorious for arranging class schedules in order to keep up with Luke and Laura or Mac and Rachel or even Lisa, Tom, Dick and Harry.

TYPING

Typing — the bane of existence for any number of students — provides the basis for a good solid education. The student with typing skills found it easier to get work and better grades. Secretaries typed out tests and class schedules. Each day many reams of paper were typed into reports, class handouts and letters. The tap-tap-tap of a student typewriter blended with other tapping typewriters during the week before finals as students prepared for projects.

UNIFORMS

Uniforms abound at Southeastern — they can be band or flag corps, ROTC, security, or even club jackets. Several groups required that uniforms be worn to all university functions while other groups required them only at formal functions.

Video mania struck in the form of Tron, Pac-Man, Galaga and others. Students stuck endless rolls of quarters in the boobbox for a few minutes of playing pleasure.

VIDEO MANIA

WORKING

Working is something the average student is well acquainted with daily as they head for various campus jobs. These jobs ranged from secretarial to working in the food lines. While many worked for the money, others worked for the experiences offered.

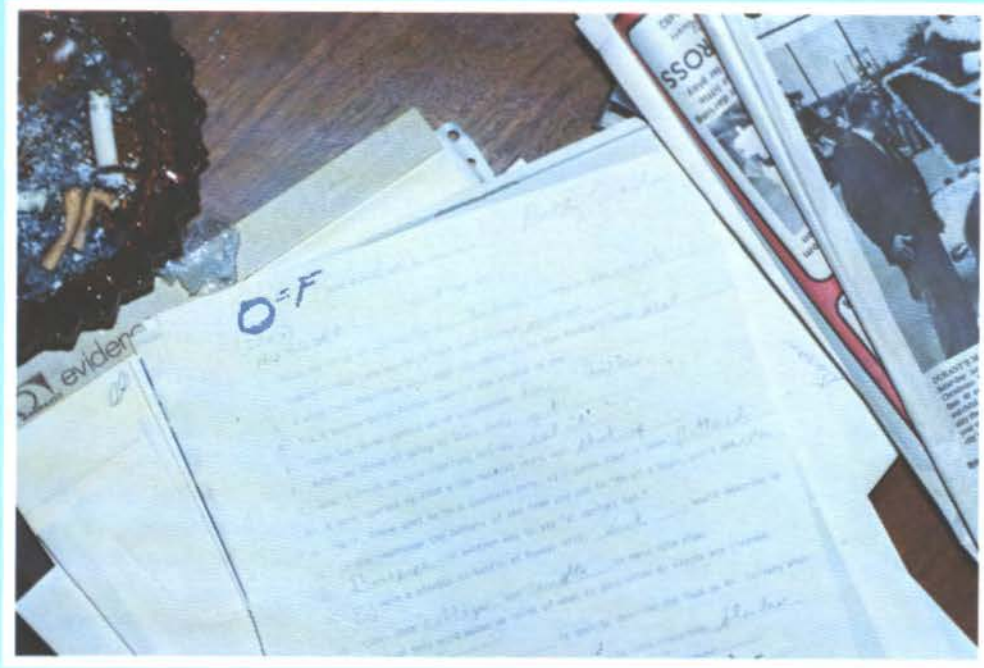

XEROX

Xerox finger hit the index finger of many students as they stood in line to make copies of everything from music to a friend's notes. Information from reserved books could be copied for reference.

YAWNING

Yawning seemed to be a pastime for some college students — especially around 4 p.m. as they took a break from work or study. Late hours hitting the books or the bars took their toll on students who missed the noontime nap.

ZERO

Students who spent hours studying rarely saw the goose eggs on their papers. Those who used books to prop up a broken chair or desk legs usually had a collection of the ovals in a variety of colors.

... AND THAT'S

THE SAVAGE

A B C's

Don't you just love it? It makes school seem more worthwhile. By the way, don't worry about me, my classes are really great and my teachers are so helpful. The wheelchair I use after my fall from the third floor really helps. I guess it was my fault I fell. If I hadn't been so sick to my stomach after the food poisoning last week, I could have caught onto the stair railing with my unbandaged hand that I cut while picking up the glass from my mirror. I can see better now that my concussion has healed. I just don't know where the other car came from.

Before you get worried, I lied. I didn't fall, I haven't had food poisoning, I didn't cut my hand or break my mirror. I can see and I didn't have a concussion or a car accident. The only thing wrong is that I need money. Now that you are relieved, please send between $50 and $100 so I can have a good time.

Students are accepted into the program between their sophomore and junior years. They take special courses for the next two summers and some possibly college accredited courses after their senior year. The students live on campus and are fully supervised both in class and on special outings. After their senior year, they are called BRIDGE students and if they enroll later in college, after 12 hours of college classwork, they may apply to have the applicable courses previously taken applied to their transcript.

RETIRED SENIOR VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) serves as a link between the older generation and the current college-aged student.

The program keeps the retired person active and aids in their resolve to remain healthy while continuing their community involvement.

Activities sponsored by RSVP include both social and educational classes. These range from dance and exercise to income tax and estate planning.

Seniors (at left) often find themselves in round table discussions and activities.

Folk dancing (below) is an activity that people of all ages enjoy. At the RSVP center, seniors give square and round dancing a try. It's not only fun, but good exercise.

SAVAGE DEBATERS

Debate brings to mind images of Abraham Lincoln and Stephan Douglas in the great Illinois debates of the 1800's and that image is not too far wrong for the university debate circuit.

Savage Debators — long considered one of the finest groups in the field — have spent nearly every weekend this year on the road where they compete and usually win or place.

The teams have been using nuclear disarmament and the weapons race as a topic and have done much research on the subject. They have also competed in extemporaneous speaking on unrelated subjects and been "big winners" over some top competitors.

Opposite page: Carla Wharton (top) asks coach Kirk Ashton for advice while doing research in one of many bulletins she reads for information.

Newspaper staffers spend long hours working to meet deadlines — for more than just getting the paper to the press. This year the newspaper staff won the Homecoming float contest and Sharla Frost, the Homecoming Queen Candidate, was first runnerup.

NEWSPAPER

Jim Gatliff, Kenny Choat, Tom Fronterhouse and Rudy Manley work diligently to ready the float for the Homecoming Parade.

Rudy Manley, advisor of THE SOUTHEASTERN, watches patiently as staff members write, layout and design the weekly publication.

Tom Fronterhouse, Ray Lokey and Kenny Choat work long hours writing, proof-reading and doing paste-up for the university newspaper.

YEARBOOK STAFF

THE SAVAGE Yearbook was supervised this year by Julia Davis, faculty member. Working with a full-time staff of four, plus assistance in photography from Mike Blair and Scott Denney, the yearbook staff attempted to capture events of the year for those who wish to look back on their college days. Hours of time and research on the part of the yearbook staff and various campus organizations and individuals were necessary when creating THE SAVAGE.

Rae Ann Jenkins, Editor (top) works on the ladder, or general organization and format of the yearbook. Sharri Wilson, Co-Editor (middle), types and edits final drafts of each page for the first deadline. Elizabeth Copeland, Layout Editor (bottom, left), co-ordinates pictures and copy blocks for creative layout designs. Bill Wright, Photographer (bottom, right), picks up photography work orders for yearbook pictures in the yearbook office.

YEARBOOK PRODUCTION

Yearbook production takes a lot of time and effort, along with a liberal amount of patience and determination. It takes a sense of humor and an ability to take criticism from fellow students.

Julia Davis serves as yearbook advisor. She supervises the student publication staff members.

Rae Ann Jinkins was named editor of the 1983 book and spent much time planning the contents of the book.

Sharri Clark Wilson served as assistant editor and copy writer. She attended to picture scheduling as part of her duties.

Elizabeth Farmer Copeland was the layout editor. She was responsible for drawing pages and selecting useable pictures.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF

For everyone who has ever needed a picture, whether it be for a passport, an application form, publication of some type or just for personal reasons, the photography lab is the place to go. Located in the basement of Morrison Hall, the darkroom can be used by faculty and students alike for pictures of various types. Students are charged a small fee for services, paper and chemicals used in processing, but the product is well worth it.

The staff is made up of student workers and supervised by faculty member Jim Weaver. They work long, long hours to produce prints for virtually every office and department on campus at some time, especially in the past working with THE SOUTHEASTERN and THE SAVAGE.

Jim Weaver (top) heads the photography staff and manages the lab. Christie Dufur (middle left) spends a lot of her time developing and printing pictures. Mark Corter (middle, right) specializes in sports shots, but spends a lot of his time in the darkroom, also. Jerry Barker (bottom, left), at the enlarger, prepares to print a picture. Dinah Owens (bottom, middle) examines a newly developed roll of film. Mike Blair (bottom, right) focuses the enlarger (in the new Journalism darkroom) before printing.

SOUTHEASTERN THEATRE

"The Middleman," Southeastern Theatre Department's entry into university competition for the fall semester, was the premier of the modern drama. Woody Karper (top) as a bus station manager explains to David Stahl (as a father putting his son on a bus bound for college) that the next bus leaves at 6:20 a.m. instead of 2:00 a.m. David Stahl as the father (bottom, left) shares a joke with his son, Guy Kasberg. Gregg Hinojosa (bottom, right) cowers as his father Jeff Still rages over his son's incompetencies while Kris Sharpley (a concession stand operator) watches.

THEATRE FESTIVAL

"Godspell" choreography rehearsals got dancers in shape through lots of hard work and sweat.

Lois Wetherspoon and Kris Sharpley brought the "Twelfth Night" roles of Olivia and Viola to life.

Sabina Weber and Raymie Priesmeyer put special effort into their roles in "Hamlet."

STUDENT

While not exactly an organization, (not even a union), a closer look at Southeastern reveals a group of people who have something in common — they are students and they work while attending school. These pages are devoted to recognizing those students so motivated.

Susan Stallings is busy making copies of various literature as part of her Campus Print Shop job.

Putting up the goals for basketball practice is part of Ken Barber's job on campus.

Tim Yates and Donna McKeen catalog books as part of their jobs in Bennett Library.

James Benham, a student computer lab assistant, assists Mr. Jimmy Martin with a program.

WORKERS

The telephone operator you talk to at the Campus Switchboard may be Norma Slack who is a student worker there.

Amid the clothes racks of the Campus Bookstore is Nancy Davis who works there.

Anita Beard proofreads reports as part of her duties in the Psychology Department.

An "RA" or Resident Assistant describes Lori Settoon shown doing paperwork as part of her job in Chickasaw Tower.

ARMY ROTC

Army ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Corps) is new at Southeastern. The program was officially started with the signing of a cross-enrollment agreement between Southeastern and East Central University Presidents Leon Hibbs and Stanley Wagner. An office was set up at Southeastern as part of the program and training began in the fall. Recruiters are on campus three days a week. Lt. Col. Joel Boyd, Professor of Military Science, said that the program offers "a type of leadership training that cannot be obtained elsewhere on the Southeastern campus. Essentially it develops an individual's inherent ability to stand up and speak — to be able to think on his feet."

An Advanced ROTC course is available for students who have had prior active service or attended the ROTC Basic Camp and desire a commission as an Army officer. Each ROTC cadet attends a six-week Summer Camp at an active duty army post and Junior and Senior cadets are paid $100 per month (not to exceed 20 months), with the exception of summer camp for which they receive $750. Upon receipt of college degree, the ROTC graduate is commissioned a Second Lieutenant, United States Army (Reserve) and normally serves a three-year tour of active duty.

CURRICULUM CONTEST

& JOB FAIR

The Curriculum Contest and Job Fair are held annually in the spring. The Curriculum Contest, directed by Dr. Lewis Barker, provides an opportunity for high school students to test their skills in various academic areas. The schools are divided into four classes from the Southeast District for competition, and winners receive trophies and scholarships. The Job Fair, held in conjunction with the contest, allows university and high school to visit with representatives of various schools and career fields. Student Services provides a free career analysis for those who are interested.

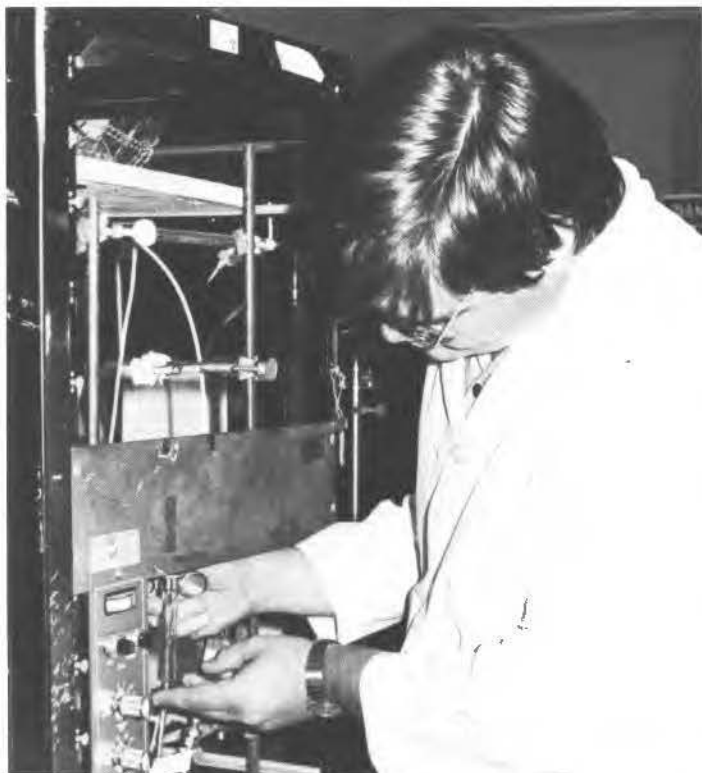

KHIB radio personnel Lee Jordan and Rick Morris (top) did a live broadcast during the Curriculum Contest and Job Fair. Working at the registration booth, Sylvia Hendrix and Doyle Edge (middle) display one of the t-shirts which was given away in a drawing. Mike Abusaab and Ali Almadi (bottom) examine literature about graduate programs at Oklahoma State University.

BIOMEDICAL RESEARCH PROGRAM AND SCIENCE

SYMPOSIUM

The Minority Biomedical Research Program, directed by Dr. Jack Robinson, offers opportunities for undergraduates in research in both biological and physical science fields. The program is for students of ethnic minority descent or socioeconomically disadvantaged backgrounds who show a strong interest and aptitude for science. The Native American Science Symposium is held annually in the fall at various schools in each region. Papers are presented by student researchers in the Biomedical Program and other students from here and visiting schools.

Graduate Assistant Paul Griffith (top) works with machinery in the Biomedical Research Lab. Angie Morris and Sylvia Hendrix (middle) visit with student researchers (from the Biomedical Research Program) Bobby Hendrix, Darrell Pugh, David Whitlock, Faith Jacob and Jack Martin and Paul Griffith, Graduate Assistant after the Native American Science Symposium. SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Each year, Southeastern hosts a Special Olympics for children with mental and physical handicaps. High school and college students participate to help each child feel loved and to feel a sense of achievement. The children "compete" in track-like events with races and other special contests. The main objective is to show these children that they are loved and that they are all winners!

Making funny faces on the knee of a friend indicates that this little girl is having a good time.

CAMP SUCCESS

Camp Success is a special camp for special kids — those who are mentally and/or physically handicapped. Suffering from a week's fatigue, Kathi Kite (left) posts a sign for "help." Obviously in deep thought, one child (middle, left) pauses with the ball as counselors and other children look on. Hula hoops (top, right) provide part of the fun. Blowing bubbles (middle, right) is another way to spend a summer's day. Some games (bottom, left) provided opportunities for improvement of dexterity and agility. Leigh Brown and Greg Hopper (bottom, middle and right) congratulate award winners at the awards assembly.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . HONORS

Honors make the work worthwhile. Honors help get you through that class that bores you stiff. Honors add spice to life as an extra reward for hard work, patience, special skills or just plain luck. It is a special part of an education and look all special things, honors are earned.

Parsons Scholars is both an organization and a group of persons who qualify for a scholarship set up by Dr. David Parsons. The society is set up for those Parsons Scholars who want to participate as a group in social activities. Others may qualify for the scholarship (those in the society must be on the scholarship) and not participate in the society. An average of 15 students are selected each year for the all-expense-paid scholarship. The qualifications include an ACT composite score of 23, a 3.5 high school grade point average and selections are based on a test, essay and interview.

HOMECOMING'S ROYAL COURT

Karen Wilson was named the 1982 Savage Football Homecoming Queen during fall ceremonies at the Homecoming Dance. Sharla Frost was honored as first runner up to Ms. Wilson. Second runner up was Kim Smith, a "Little Sister" for Phi Sigma Epsilon social fraternity. Southeastern returned to naming a queen after students made the request. This year, the queen was crowned on a Tuesday night rather than at the football game halftime activities.

Karen Wilson (at right), the homecoming queen, represents Sigma Kappa social sorority. She is that organization's president.

Ms. Frost (below, left) is escorted by Jim Gatliff, editor of THE SOUTHEASTERN. Ms. Wilson (below, center) pauses during the homecoming week. Mrs. Smith (below, right) is escorted by her husband, Paul Smith.

Sports is a tradition at schools everywhere and Southeastern is no exception. Sports range from tennis, golf, swimming, football, basketball, baseball and soccer to horsemanship and track. Sports can be competitive between colleges, within the school or within the person against the clock. It is sports which build discipline and endurance as well as school spirit.

EQUESTRIAN CENTER

Equestrian Center, a new addition to Southeastern, was donated to the University by Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Gary and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leland Gary with their families. The center is facilitating the inclusion of courses in horsemanship for the show ring as well as the rodeo arena.

Rodeo Club serves as an organization where students interested in rodeo and its events can meet to plan outings and competitions.

Intramural sports play a vital part of the entire sports program at SOSU. This type of activity program allows individuals who are not interested in an organized sport to play with friends in games for fun and relaxation.

Coach Mike Metheny sponsors the intramural program and plans the sports to fit the season.

The program consists of football, volleyball, soccer, tennis, racquetball, basketball, softball and ping pong. The programs are open to all men and women on campus.

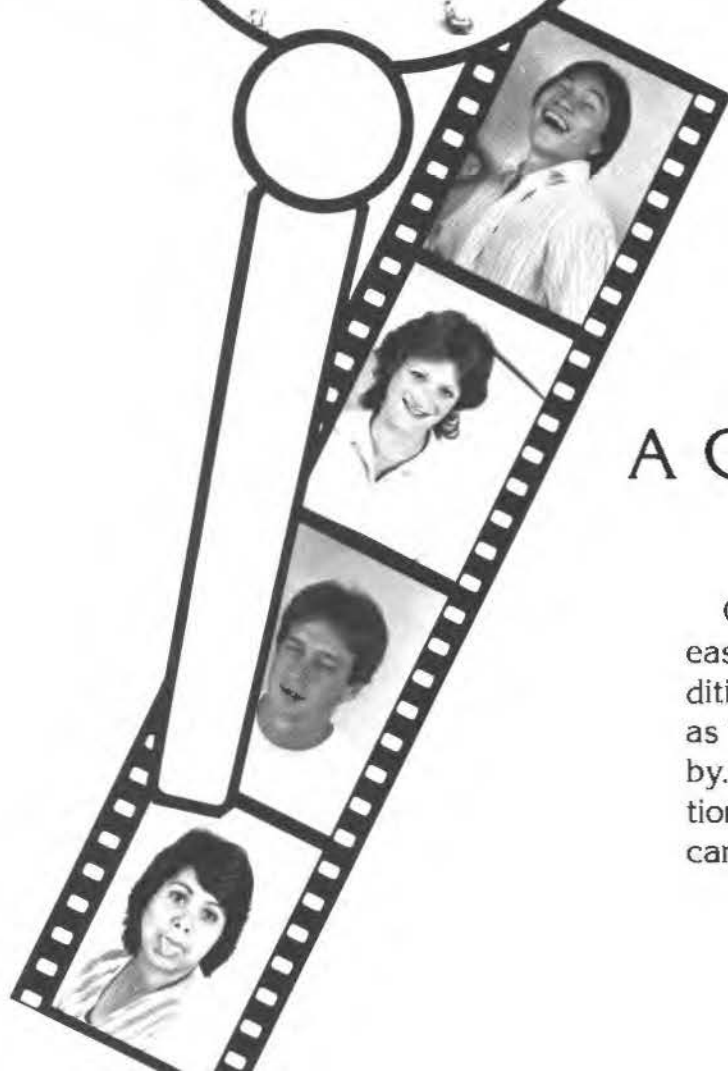

Local organizations (such as the Greeks and service clubs) put together teams that challenge each other and often sponsor tournaments.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . GREEKS

Greeks add a special flavor to life at Southeastern. The Greeks carry on time-honored traditions that mean as much to today's members as they did to those members from days gone by. Greeks give of themselves to their organizations and their community. It is the part of campus life that ties students together.

ALPHA SIGMA TAU

Alpha Sigma Tau is an organization for young women who wish to be a part of the "Greek Life" on a university campus. Alpha Tau's hold dances, charity events, rush parties and other activities for both social and charitable events. They also encourage academic growth of their membership.

Pledging is the first step in becoming a member of Alpha Sigma Tau. Some of the activities, to an outsider, hardly seem worth the time and effort to join the group, but to a member, these "trials and tribulations" are worth the lifelong friendships and pleasant memories of college life. Fall pledges include (seated) Kim Butler, Patti Wade, Pledge Beau Lance Erwin, Elaine Luna, Christene Johnson, (standing) Sue Ann Buck, Rita Brock, Kelly Clark, Laurie Walker and Weslie Fortenberry.

At the spring South-eastern Savage Talent Show, Alpha Tau members Angie Bivings, Jackie Young, Ruth Hall and Sue Ann Buck did a take-off on the punk group, The GoGos for a first place trophy and a lot of fun.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . THE ADMINISTRATION

The Administration for Southeastern consists of teachers, staff members, administrators, the regents and the governor of Oklahoma. The Administration is always there for the student who needs help, wants to improve himself or just talk about the future. The Administration is people who are ready to help. It is the part of campus life that leads and teaches, but can also make leaders and teachers of their students.

GOVERNOR NIGH

The people of Oklahoma need a leader. The man who presently holds that position and has held that position for four years is Governor George Nigh. Nigh was elected November 7, 1978, as the 22nd Governor of Oklahoma. He is the first lieutenant governor to be elected and the first person to serve four terms as Oklahoma's chief executive.

Mark Edmondson, who served as Southeastern's campus coordinator in the campaign to elect Governor Nigh, shares a car ride with the Governor in the Homecoming Parade.

PRESIDENT HIBBS

Being president of a university is a challenge as well as a job, as anyone in that position can tell you. But it is an enjoyable task despite the worries and responsibilities according to President Leon Hibbs. Maintaining an "open door" policy with students and faculty, he is an open, honest administrator. He is also a man much in demand as his presence, approval and/or supervision are required at various functions by a variety of people.

President Hibbs pauses from conversation with faculty member Rudy Manley to pose for a picture.

An alumni of Southeastern, Les Bull contributes funds for a scholarship to the school as President Hibbs looks on.

A moment's pause for a snapshot is a welcome relief from an ever-present workload.

Chatting with Senator David Boren of Oklahoma after his visit to the campus, President Hibbs is caught in mid-sentence of his conversation.

DEANS

Deans at Southeastern do much more than sign slips of paper grating permission to enroll or be excused from class. They coordinate and advise students on scheduling and other aspects of student life.

Colin Bowen (top left) serves as dean of the school of behavioral studies and graduate dean in addition to being a professor in education and psychology. Katie Frank Slack (top right) is the dean of women students and teaches professional education and psychology classes. C. Henry Gold (above left) is the dean of the school of business and industry and is chairman of the division of business. Robert Thomas (above) is the dean of men and teaches specialized courses while serving as sponsor for various organizations. Edwin Boynton (at left) is the graduate coordinator for the school of behavioral studies and teaches professional graduate education and psychology courses.

VICE PRESIDENTS

Vice presidents work hard to keep the University running on an even keel all year long. Each vice president is responsible for a specific area.

M. G. Smith (top left) serves as vice president for university services in addition to teaching graduate and senior level education classes. Ernest Sturch (top right) is the vice president of instructions — the man who works the enrollment bulletins into an orderly booklet and oversees the "teaching processes" for students. David Parker (above) is the vice president for business services and the purchasing agent. John Krattiger (above right) is the vice president for student services and works with the deans in helping students. Mary Castleberry is the vice president of records, registration and administration.

HIGH SCHOOL RELATIONS AND CONTINUOUS EDUCATION

High school relations and continuous education fill the gap for high school students planning to attend college and people wanting to continue their education.

Marian Massey, Mike Harmon and Geneva Newell (at right) take care of the continuous education department.

Gene Robbins (lower, left) heads the high school relations office and spends hours talking with high school students about attending Southeastern Oklahoma State University.

Geneva Beard (lower, right) is the office assistant to Mr. Robbins and is responsible for the large volumes of mail-outs sent to prospective students.

REGISTRAR AND PLACEMENT

Student enrollments are processed and sent to the Registrar to be made a part of the permanent records. The Registrar takes the responsibility of recording and distributing grades to the student.

The placement office helps graduating students look for jobs. The women put prospective employers with job-seeking students for interviews.

Virginia Fisher (below, left) is in charge of the placement office. Wanda Watson (below, center) also works in the placement office. Mary Castleberry (below, right) is the registrar and oversees the operations and confidentiality of the campus records department.

DEVELOPMENTAL SERVICES AND SMALL BUSINESS INSTITUTE

The Center for Developmental Services consists of Public Relations, the Print Shop and the Alumni Association. These departments work together to handle communications for Southeastern.

The Small Business Institute Program is a program designed for students and small businessmen alike. The purpose of the course/program is to use student help in solving cases for problems encountered by small businessmen in running their businesses. It profits both participants.

Center for Developmental Services personnel are: (left to right, first row) Phyllis McCarty, Marlene Howard, Christy Dufur, (second row) Bob Peterson, Terry Ingram, (third row) Cecil Sullivan, Susan Stallings, Dana Stewart, James Weaver, (fourth row) Robin Logan, Bill Manners, E. F. Hawkins, Jr., Carl Hill and Tom Vickers.

STUDENT AID AND ENROLLMENT CENTER

Students need help when entering college, both financial aid and assistance with choosing and enrolling in classes. Financial aid may take the form of a scholarship, grant, loan or work. The place to go for help is the student aid office. Enrollment is hectic and often confusing, and which courses are still available is not always clear — until you check with the enrollment center. A “closed class” list is issued throughout enrollment to aid the student in choosing classes. With the services provided by the student aid office and the enrollment center, enrollment for the student is made much simpler.

Director of Student Aid, Paul Wiley (top) supervises financial aid disbursements and sets up special arrangements for students in need. Office personnel (left) Pat Reeves, Sherril Rodgers, Sandy Griffin and Debbie Craig handle the routine applications, forms and problems that occur for students who wish to apply for financial aid.

BURSAR

School financial matters are handled through the Bursar. A large staff is necessary for the business of student checks for financial aid, work and loans, enrollment fees, overdue library fines and all the financial business concerning the school. Students mob the office when checks come in and enrollment periods roll around, making the Bursar's office a hectic place.

Mellodean Morton

CONTROLLER, CREDIT

UNION AND PURCHASING

The Controller, Purchasing Agent and Credit Union Agent and their staffs all help the school and its faculty and staff with expenditures and credits. Whether it's personal finances or institutionally allotted finances, advice and supervision can be gained from these offices.

George Breeden serves as the Controller.

David Parker is the supervisor of Purchasing.

The Controller's Office staff consists of: (clockwise, from front) Margie Campbell, Rose Ann Arnold and Gladys Skinner.

Dr. Earl Kilpatrick is in charge of the Credit Union.

STUDENT SPECIAL SERVICES PROGRAMS

Student Special Services Programs, also called TRIO Programs is a group of programs designed to help students in a variety of ways while at Southeastern. The Upward Bound Program works with high school students giving some the opportunity to take college courses and participate in other special activities while still in high school. The Special Services Program provides such things as tutoring services, free career analysis and other academic and aptitude testing. The Talent Search Program is another program mostly concerned with high school students and their entry into Southeastern. Counseling is available in many areas through these programs.

Jan Anderson, Talent Search Counselor and Shauna Sterling, Special Services Counselor represent the TRIO Programs in a booth at Parent's Day.

Leon Scott, TRIO Programs Director and Linda Powers, Administrative Secretary handle administrative work for the programs.

Special Services Program personnel are: (clockwise) Sheila Fisher Academic Coordinator/Instructor; Shauna Sterling, Counselor; Darrel Davis, Counselor/Coordinator and Donna Hobbs, Secretary.

Joy Culbreath, Upward Bound Coordinator

Talent Search Program personnel are: (clockwise) Al White, Counselor

POSTAL AND HEALTH

SERVICES

Steve Easterwood supervises the operation of the Campus Post Office.

Among other services rendered to students, postal and health services are offered. The Campus Post Office serves as a center for incoming and outgoing mail and provides much the same services as any post office handling both student and university mail. The Buchanan Laboratory provides a variety of health services to students from immunizations to blood tests.

Physician's Assistant Gerald Buchanan is available to students for treatment and/or prevention of a variety of health problems.

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE

The campus bookstore is in the business of selling books and school supplies to students. They carry most everything the student needs in the way of textbooks, school supplies and supplementary materials. To further serve the student, special holiday sales and other sales such as clearance sales are held. Among other merchandise sold is clothing, greeting cards and momentos for almost any aspect of college life at South-eastern.

David Mize, manager of the campus bookstore works closely with the school to supply students with all books and materials needed.

Kernal Kutait is the assistant manager and also handles textbook circulation.

COMPUTER CENTER, SWITCHBOARD AND PRINT SHOP

Communication is a key word for those who process data, make and take calls and handle the printing of materials for the campus and its people. Long hours and hard work describe the jobs of employees of the computer center, switchboard and print shop. Smooth intra-campus and inter-campus communication depends on them.

Debra Hedrick (top, left) takes a moment from her job as Operator of the Computer Center to pose for a picture. She supervises student operators, students working on class assignments and all operations involving the computer.

AUXILIARY SERVICE

Auxiliary Services is — more or less — responsible for the room and board of university students living on campus. This department supervises the dormitories as well as the university apartments. Food services are also handled through Auxiliary Services.

Each year, the department heads up a "spruce up and clean up" campaign for each semester in the dorms with a special area targeted for revitalization. This year, it was the area of Hallie McKinney Hall.

John Lyons serves as director for Auxiliary Services. He personally supervises each phase of the department and is often seen helping in any area where help is needed, such as serving food or painting walls.

Other dorm counselors include (from left) Ray Lokey, Darrell Bush, Richard M. Williams, and two other men.

Also working in Auxiliary services are Patricia T. and four other women.

FOOD SERVICES

"The Coffee Shop Trio" are Stella Russell, Betty Owens and Doris Kirk. They serve hundreds of hamburgers, hot dogs and burritos each day along with gallons of coffee, tea and soft drinks.

Food Services includes more than just putting food on a tray in the cafeteria. It takes in the whole realm of food preparation, serving and special catered meals.

Food services includes the cafeteria, coffee shop and sidewalk cafe. They prepare special meals for banquets, trays of fancy cookies for receptions and snacks for the annual "Finals study night."

AUDIO VISUAL AND LIBRARY

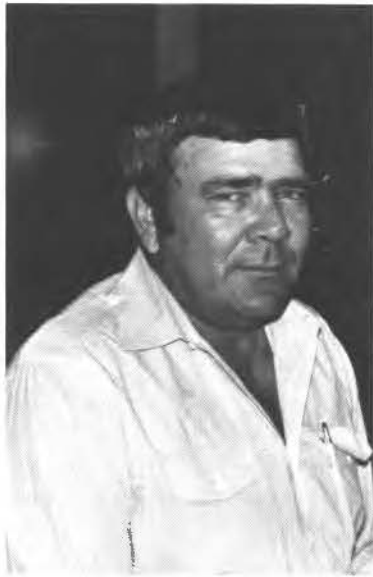

Providing literary materials and equipment is the job of the Audio Visual Department and the Library. The student's educational experience is enhanced by the use of services provided by both.

J.B. Phillips (top) is the head of the Audio Visual Department. Wayne Coston also manages (middle, left) and Kaye Davis (middle, right) is the secretary for the department.

MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT

The term “maintenance department” is very misleading on the SOSU campus. The men and women who make up this department do more than just cleaning — they do a lot of construction and grounds keeping.

Projects ranged from repairing water and steam lines to putting in new sidewalks. They also worked the football field over to get it in good shape for the fall season. Maintenance personnel also did renovations.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . STUDENTS

Students are the reason the Southeastern and other schools exist. Students need education and the best place to get it is in school. Southeastern attracts students from all cultures and countries and welcomes them into its classrooms and activities. It is for the students that this yearbook exists.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . CLOSING ANOTHER YEAR

Closing another year seems hard. We had only just begun when December rolled around. Couples and friends, semesters that never end, football games with hot chocolate, basketball games that go to the wire and now its over but not yet gone. These memories linger when a closer look is taken as we close another year.

Debra Calhoun is one of the seniors who did achieve the "ultimate college experience".

The inspiration, the perspiration, they finally paid off, didn't they? All that effort, all that frustration it's hard to believe another year is over. Oh, at times we had our doubts, but we succeeded. We won, in our own individual ways. And if you graduated, you realized the ultimate college experience.

Harry Spivey's own individual effort is shown here as he dunks another one for two points.

The renovations of the "Snake Pit" was completed during the fall semester into the new theater complex.

It was a miles one year, but then, every year is. The year marked accomplishments and growth in each of us. Our horizons were broadened — scholastically, athletically, socially — everyone reached some goal or other.

Kent Davis leaped to a new high on a pass reception

Between class socializing and part of Southeastern's campus structure.

Sharla Frost was named the academic winner of the 1982 Harry S. Truman
Scholarship, presented by Dr. Leon
Hibbs.

It is a year to look back on. It is a year we will recall as "the good old days." Some will remember the 4.0 they earned during the fall semester or that "jaunt" through the sprinkler during the spring semester. Individual accomplishments and pride in the achievements of others — the basketball team, the space shuttle astronauts — there are dozens of things to look back on.

Quiet walks on a snowy afternoon relaxed students weary from studying.

Jack Martin tries to dodge sprinkler streams on his way to class.

Lou Kennedy and Terri Young work toward that 4.0.

Boule Fountain gets a traditional "bubble bath" as warm weather brings on high spirits.

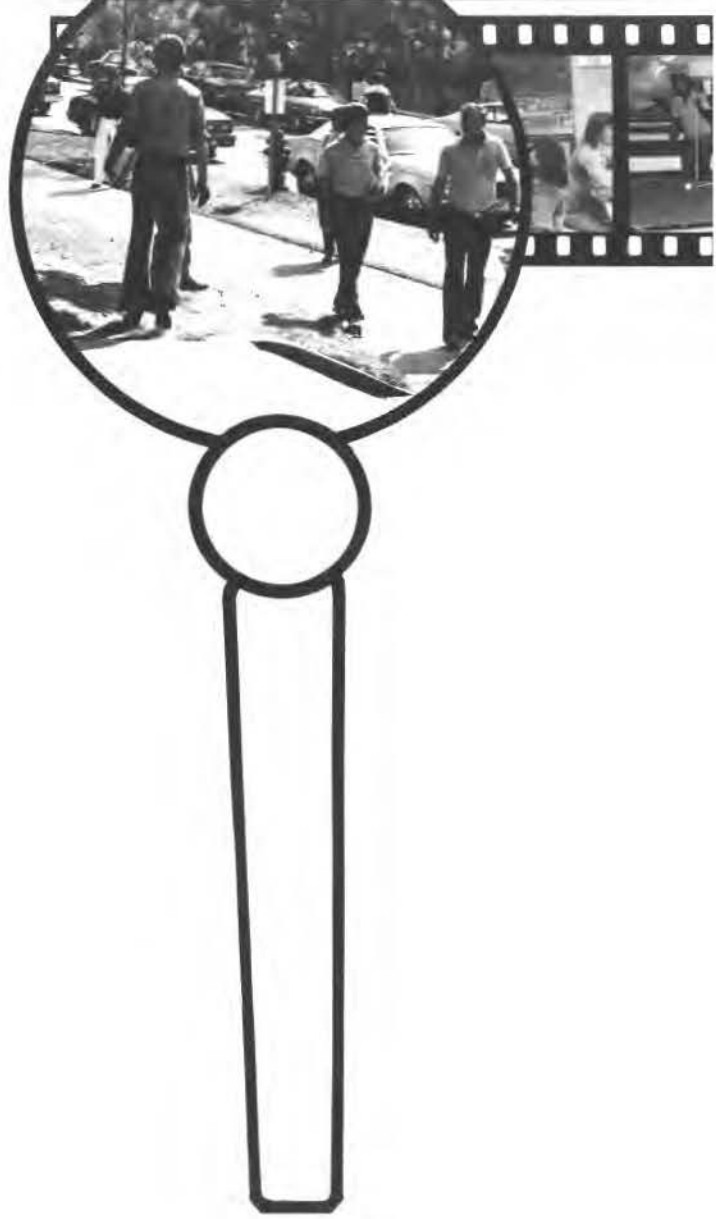

Jeff Rowe contemplates the coaches strategy during the 1982 season.

Everyone experienced disappointments but overcame them and felt stronger, able to handle whatever lay ahead. For freshmen, the year marked their first taste of responsibility, for seniors, the culmination of at least four years of struggle.

Whether you're staying in Durant, getting that big job or heading for the unemployment line, you're over one hurdle.

Watching M-TV in the Coffee Shop has become a favorite past time for many students.

A CLOSER LOOK AT . . . THE INDEX

At Southeastern, a traditional feature of the yearbook is the listing of all the students and faculty at this school whether their picture appears in the yearbook or not. Those names with page numbers beside them have pictures. The index is useful in locating friends who "were there when I was a student."
